Preface

This new edition of the Hugo course 'Swedish in Three Months' is designed for those people who want to acquire a good working knowledge of Swedish in a short time, and who will probably be working at home without a teacher. The 'Three Months' series as a whole is renowned for its success in self-tuition, but the books are equally useful as sources of reference if you happen to be attending language classes.

The authors have many years of experience of teaching Swedish both at school and university level and also in evening classes. They have used this experience to draw attention to areas of grammar that cause particular difficulty for English-speaking learners of Swedish. The language used throughout the book is modern and colloquial but, for the most part, avoids excessively slangy idioms: the consistent aim is acceptability.

'Swedish in Three Months' begins with an explanation of the sounds of the language as far as this is possible in print. If you have no teacher you will find that the system of imitated pronunciation used in the early lessons will be a great help. We would, however, advise you to use the related audio cassettes if at all possible; these have been produced as optional extras but using them will undoubtedly enhance both the quality and the pleasure of your learning. Ask the bookshop for Hugo's Swedish 'Three Months' Cassette Course.

Ideally you should spend about an hour a day on the course and it is probably better to spend a little less than an hour rather than more. (Many people find that two half-hour sessions are much more efficient and often easier to organize in the course of the day.) It is much better to learn a little at a time, and to learn that thoroughly. And don't forget to use the 'wasted' five minutes at the bus stop or in the traffic jam: you don't need the book with you in order to hold imaginary conversations in Swedish or to simply name the things that you can see. Do not be afraid to work aloud: all the Swedish passages, examples and vocabulary should be repeated aloud as often as possible (but probably not at the bus stop).

Each chapter introduces, explains and practises a number of elements of grammar. Many examples are given and you should study these carefully: learn the vocabulary they contain as you go along, since the exercises that follow will expect you to know it. Study each rule or numbered section carefully and reread it to ensure that you have fully understood the grammar and the examples given. Once you have understood the grammar, memorize a number of the examples so that you have a pattern stuck firmly in your mind. The complete vocabulary for each chapter is given at the end of the chapter and you should test yourself on it before you continue. Do all the exercises (the answers are at the back of the book), and then do them again a few days later. Are you making the same mistakes or different ones?

At the end of the course there are a couple of reading passages in good modern Swedish and, following them, a Swedish-English and English-Swedish mini-dictionary of all the vocabulary in the book. By the end of the course you will have a good understanding of Swedish and a sound knowledge of all the main grammatical structures. You now have a basis for further studies, whether for holiday, business or examination purposes. We hope you enjoy 'Swedish in Three Months' and wish you success in your learning.

Pronunciation

The alphabet

The Swedish alphabet has 29 letters. The order of the letters is the same as in English, and the three extra letters (å, ä, ö) appear at the end in that order. The letters w and q are rare except in names, and words beginning with w are included under v in dictionaries.

The Swedish consonants are: b c d f g h j k l m n p q r s t v w x z.
The Swedish vowels are: (back vowels) a o u å; (front vowels) e i y ä ö.

The Imitated Pronunciation

In the first three lessons of this course we have given Imitated Pronunciation of the new words as they arise. In the Imitated Pronunciation each syllable of the Swedish word has, as far as is possible, been written as if it were part of an English word. The system is explained below. By following the Imitated Pronunciation you will be accurate enough to make yourself understood. For a more natural pronunciation, however, we recommend that you listen repeatedly to the cassette recordings that are available to accompany the book. And more than just listen: you should pronounce all the words and phrases aloud, carefully imitating the cassette, as often as you have the chance.

Stress

All syllables are either stressed or unstressed; in the Imitated Pronunciation we indicate stressed syllables by the use of bold type. The sounds in unstressed syllables are still pronounced clearly – unlike in English, where there is a tendency for unstressed syllables to become indistinct or even disappear. In the Imitated Pronunciation final -e has been written -eh to remind you to pronounce it. The main stress in Swedish words is generally on the first syllable: gata 'street'; gammal 'old'; syster 'sister'. Words borrowed from other languages (especially from French and Latin) will, however, often have the stress on the final syllable: student 'student'; universitet 'university'.

Words with the prefixes be-, ge-, and för- usually have their stress on the second syllable: betyda 'to mean' gemensam 'common', förklara 'to explain'.

Length

Vowels: Swedish vowels are either long or short. The spelling is a good but not infallible guide to length.

Vowels in unstressed syllables are always short.

The vowel in a stressed syllable will be long if (i) it comes at the end of a one-syllable word: tre 'three', gå 'walk'; or (ii) it is followed by only one consonant: bil 'car', båt 'boat'. Notice, however, that the vowel is short in many common words ending in single -m or -n: rum 'room', hon 'she'.

Swedish long vowels are very much longer than English long vowels and Swedish short vowels are quite short. Listen carefully to the cassette. In English many long vowels are pronounced as diphthongs even where, as in 'my' or 'lo', they are written as single vowels. Try to avoid this in Swedish, as standard Swedish vowels are pure vowels.

Consonants: Swedish consonants may also be long or short and in this case length is indicated by doubling. Such double consonants should be 'lingered on' in pronunciation: flicka 'girl', kvinna 'woman'. (Notice that ck is always written rather than double k.)

Melody or tone

The characteristic melody or tone of Swedish that you have probably already heard arises from the fact that there are two word melodies (in most dialects) compared with the single word melody used in English. This is often illustrated as follows:

ENGLISH finger ~	SWEDISH finger ~
ENGLISH brother ~	SWEDISH broder ~

Swedish broder along with many other words, then, has a secondary stress. These 'melodies' can only be learnt by imitation and we have made no attempt to reproduce them in the Imitated Pronunciation. The cassette will help you here.

Pronunciation of vowels

The equivalents given can, of course, be no more than approximate.

		Imitated Pronunciation
a (long)	dag 'day' as 'a' in English 'father'	ah
	(short) hatt 'hat' as 'a' in northern English 'hat'	a
å (long)	båt 'boat' as 'aw' in English 'saw'	aw (short) fått 'got' as 'o' in English 'got'	o
o (long)	bok 'book' as 'oo' in English 'moon' but with rounded and protruding lips	oo:

(short)	moster 'aunt' as 'oo' in English 'book'	oo
u (long)	du 'you' almost as 'u' in English 'flute' but with very rounded and protruding lips	ue
(short)	buss 'bus' as 'u' in English 'full' but with slightly rounded and protruding lips	u
e (long)	tre 'three' as 'ay' in northern English 'say'	ay
(short)	svensk 'Swedish' as 'e' in English 'best'	e
ä (long)	äta 'eat' as 'ai' in English 'lair'	ai
(short)	bäst 'best' as 'e' in English 'best'	e
i (long)	bil 'car' as 'ee' in English 'bee'	ee
(short)	sitta 'sit' as 'i' in English 'sit'	i
y (long)	ny 'new' as 'u' in French 'mur' or 'ü' in German 'Tür'. There is no English equivalent but try to pronounce 'ee' with very rounded and protruding lips.	ü:
y (short)	syster 'sister' as 'u' in French 'lune' or 'ü' in German 'dünn'. A short version of the above.	ü
ö (long)	snö 'snow' as a lengthened 'ur' in English 'fur', but do not pronounce the 'r'	ur:
(short)	höst 'autumn' as a shortened 'ur' in English 'fur' but do not pronounce the 'r'	ur

In many common words the ä sound is spelled with o: son (ssawn) 'son'. There is unfortunately no way of knowing that it is pronounced differently from the o in bok (boo:k) except by knowing the word.

Pronunciation of consonants

The consonants b d f h m n p t v are pronounced essentially as in English, though the tip of the tongue is just behind the teeth for Swedish d n and t (dag 'day'; ny 'new'; äta 'eat'). The rarer q sounds like English 'k', and w like English 'v'.

Consonant	Imitated Pronunciation
s	se 'see' is always like 'ss' in English 'hiss'. Never use the 's' of English 'those'. s or ss
c	centrum 'centre' is like the 'ss' in English 'hiss' (except in a few borrowed words such as camping , where it has the sound of English 'k'). s or ss
z	zon 'zone' is like the 'ss' in English 'hiss' ss
x	exempel 'example' is like the 'x' in English 'excite' kss
j	ja 'yes' is like the 'y' in English 'yes' y
l	läsa 'read' is like 'l' in English 'lip' pronounced with the tip of the tongue at the back of the teeth. Avoid the l of English 'all'. l
r	rum 'room' is trilled as in the Scottish 'Rory' r
rs	Lars : the combination is like 'rsh' in English 'harsh'. This occurs even when the r and s are in different words: var snäll 'please'. rsh rd, rl, rt, rn	bord 'table', Karl , bort 'away', barn 'child': in these combinations the 'r' is not trilled. The combined sounds are rather similar to the West-country English pronunciation of 'bard', 'furl', 'heart' and 'barn'.
rg, lg	arg 'angry', älg 'elk': the 'g' in these combinations is pronounced similarly to English 'rry' in 'sherry' and 'lly' in 'silly' rry lly
ng	många 'many' is pronounced like English 'ng' in 'singer' but not as in 'finger' ng
gn	regna 'rain' is pronounced as 'ng-n' (rengna) ngn

Pronunciation of 'g', 'k' and 'sk'

These consonants change their quality when they are followed by front vowels. In most circumstances:

g	gata 'street' is like 'g' in English 'gate'
k	katt 'cat' is like 'k' in English 'Kate'
sk	sko 'shoe' is like 'sk' in English 'skip'

When followed by a front vowel (e i y ä ö) in a stressed syllable, however, these vowels become 'soft':

		Imitated Pronunciation
g	Göran is like 'y' in English 'young'	y
k	kär 'dear' is like 'ch' in German 'ich'. The English 'ch' in 'church' will be understood but listen carefully to the cassette.	ch
sk	skida 'ski' is similar to 'sh' in English 'shirt' if you pronounce it with rounded lips. Many people pronounce it like 'wh' in English 'whew!' the cassette will help you.	sh

There are a number of spellings of these soft sounds.

g as in Göran may also be written with the symbols:

- j as in ja 'yes'
- dj as in djur 'animal' (silent 'd')
- gj as in gjorde 'did' (silent 'g')
- hj as in hjärta 'heart' (silent 'h')
- lj as in ljus 'light' (silent 'l')

k as in kär may also be written with the symbols:

- tj as in tjugo 'twenty'
- kj as in kjol 'skirt'

sk as in skida may also be written with the symbols:

- sj as in sju 'seven'
- skj as in skjorta 'shirt'
- stj as in stjärna 'star'
- ti (in -tion) as in station 'station'

Chapter 1

In this first chapter you will meet some of the basic building blocks of Swedish and learn to make simple statements and questions. The chapter includes:

- the indefinite and definite articles ('a/an' and 'the')
- nouns – names for people and things
- the subject pronouns ('I', 'you', etc.)
- two important verbs – 'to have' and 'to be'
- the numbers from zero to ten
- some everyday expressions.

1 Indefinite article

The indefinite article ('a', 'an') is either en or ett depending on the gender of the noun to which it refers:

en bil	a car	ett barn	a child
en hund	a dog	ett hus	a house

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: ayn beel; ayn hund; ett bahrn; ett huess

2 Nouns

All Swedish nouns are either En-nouns or Ett-nouns (sometimes known respectively as common gender and neuter gender).

En-nouns		Ett-nouns
kvinna	woman	hus	house
gata	street	rum	room
månad	month	barn	child
bil	car	problem	problem

About three-quarters of all nouns are En-nouns. Although there are many guidelines for predicting gender, the gender is best learned along with the word.

Most nouns denoting human beings and animals are En-nouns:

flicka	girl
man	man
hund	dog
katt	cat

(Exceptions: ett barn 'a child', ett lejon 'a lion')

Most nouns denoting days, months, seasons and festivals are En-nouns:

måndag	Monday
höst	autumn
jul	Christmas
januari	January

Most nouns that end in -ad, -are, -dom, -else, -het, -ing, -ion, -ism, -lek are En-nouns:

lärare	teacher
sjukdom	illness
rörelse	movement
svaghet	weakness
station	station

Most nouns that end in -ek, -em, -iv, -um are Ett-nouns:

apotek	pharmacy
system	system
motiv	motive
museum	museum

Names of towns, provinces, countries and continents are Ett-nouns:

Stockholm	Stockholm (Swedish capital)
Småland	Småland (Swedish province)
Sverige	Sweden
Europa	Europe

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: kvinna; gahta; mawnad; rum; problaym; flicka; man; katt; leyon; mondah; hurst; yuel; yanuahri; lairareh; shuekdoom; ru:relsseh; svahg-hayt; stashoo:n; apotayk; süstaym; moteev; muessayum; stockholm; smawland; svery-eh, eh-ueroo:pa.

3 Definite article in the singular

The definite article ('the') is added to the end of the noun. It will be referred to as the end article.

The singular definite article for En-nouns is -en.

The singular definite article for Ett-nouns is -et.

bil	car	bilen	the car
höst	autumn	hösten	the autumn
sjukdom	illness	sjukdomen	the illness
barn	child	barnet	the child
hus	house	huset	the house
bord	table	bordet	the table

Nouns that end in a vowel only add the -n or the -t of the singular definite article:

en kvinna	a woman	kvinnan	the woman
ett hjärta	a heart	hjärtat	the heart

En-nouns that end in -el or -er only add -n for the end article:

en nyckel	a key	nyckeln	the key
en dotter	a daughter	dottern	the daughter

Nouns of both genders ending in -en, and Ett-nouns ending in -el or -er, drop the -e- before adding the end article:

en öken	a desert	öknen	the desert
ett fönster	a window	fönstret	the window
ett exempel	an example	exemplet	the example

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: beelen; hursten; shuekdoomen; bahrnet; huesset; boord, boordet; kvinnan; ett yairta, yairtat; en nückel, nückeln; en dotter, dottern; en ur:ken, ur:knen; ett furnster, furnstret; ett ekssempel, ekssemplet.

Exercise 1

A Using the examples and guidelines above, give the correct indefinite article for each of the following nouns.

B Then add the end article to each noun instead.

- 1 barn (child)
- 2 sjukdom (illness)
- 3 fisk (fish)
- 4 nation (nation)
- 5 problem (problem)
- 6 bibliotek (library)
- 7 fågel (bird)
- 8 hus (house)
- 9 hjärta (heart)
- 10 sommar (summer)
- 11 påsk (Easter)
- 12 faktum (fact)

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: fisk; natshoo:n; bibliotayk; fawgel; sommar; posk; faktum.

Exercise 2

Give the Swedish for:

- | | |
|---------------|----------------|
| 1 the woman | 7 Sweden |
| 2 a pharmacy | 8 a street |
| 3 the month | 9 the car |
| 4 Christmas | 10 a room |
| 5 the station | 11 a museum |
| 6 the girl | 12 the teacher |

4 Subject pronouns

singular		plural
jag	I	vi	we
du	you	ni	you
han	he	de	they
hon	she
den	it (referring to an En-noun)
det	it (referring to an Ett-noun)
man	one

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: yah(g); due; han; hoon; den; de; man; vee; nee; dom.

De is pronounced 'dom' in almost all situations.

The form ni may be used as a formal 'you' singular. This went out of fashion except among older people during the 1960s and 1970s but has now become more common again. It is the norm in business and formal correspondence.

The general pronoun man is used much more frequently than the English 'one', and without its class overtones. It covers, for example, the situations where English might use a general 'you', 'they', 'we' or 'people'.

5 Two verbs: 'ha' (to have) and 'vara' (to be)

The infinitive (the basic form) of the majority of verbs ends in -a:

ha	to have	tala	to speak, talk
vara	to be	arbeta	to work

(In English the infinitive is often preceded by 'to' – the so-called infinitive marker. When an infinitive marker is necessary in Swedish, att is used.)

Swedish verbs have only one form for each tense.
The present tense of the common irregular verbs ha and vara is as follows:

	ha			vara
jag	har	I have	jag	är	I am
du	har	you have	du	är	you are han	har	he has	han	är	he is hon	har	she has	hon	är	she is den	har	it has	den	är	it is det	har	it has	det	är	it is
vi	har	we have	vi	är	we are ni	har	you have	ni	är	you are de	har	they have	de	är	they are

Vocabulary

Make a habit of learning all new words and their meanings as they appear in the text and examples. Other words you will need to learn for the exercises are given throughout the chapters in short lists like this.

gammal	old	ful	ugly
ny	new	här	here
vacker	beautiful	och	and
ung	young

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: (5) hah; vahra; tahla; arbayta; att; hahr; ay; (Vocabulary) gammal; nü; vacker; ung; fuel; hair; ock (o).

Notice that är is usually pronounced 'ay'.

Exercise 3

Give the Swedish for:

- | | |
|----------------------|-------------------|
| 1 He has a car. | 3 I am old. |
| 2 They have a house. | 4 The car is new. |

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|----------------------------|
| 5 You (pl) have a child. | 9 The bird is ugly. |
| 6 The girl is beautiful. | 10 I am here. |
| 7 We have a problem. | 11 He has a cat and a dog. |
| 8 You (sing) are young. | 12 Here is the station. |

6 Noun plurals

The plural of nouns is formed by adding endings. The nouns fall into five groups, each with its characteristic plural ending and, even though it is often possible to predict the correct ending, it is better to learn it along with the gender.

- | | | | | |
|-----------|-----------|----------|---------|----------|
| (i) -OR | en blomma | a flower | blommor | flowers |
| (ii) -AR | en bil | a car | bilar | cars |
| (iii) -ER | en månad | a month | månader | months |
| (iv) -N | ett äpple | an apple | äpplen | apples |
| (v) - | ett barn | a child | barn | children |

In the word lists the gender and plural of nouns will be indicated in this way: bil (noun) -en (gender) -ar (plural); barn (noun) -et (gender) - (plural).

The following guidelines will help to predict many of the plural endings:

- (i) En-nouns that end in -a in the singular drop the -a and add -or:

kvinna	kvinnor	women
gata	gator	streets
flicka	flickor	girls

- (ii) Many nouns add -ar in the plural, including some you've already met, as well as En-nouns that end in -e, -el, -en, -dom, -ing and -lek in the singular. Nouns that end in -e, -el, -en, -er all drop the -e before the plural ending.

bil	bilar	cars
hund	hundar	dogs
måndag	måndagar	Mondays
höst	höstar	autumns
jul	jular	Christmases
pojke	pojkar	boys
fågel	fåglar	birds
sjukdom	sjukdomar	illnesses

- (iii) Along with many other nouns, both En- and Ett-nouns that end in -nad, -skap, -är, -het, -else, -ion and -ism in the singular add -er:

en katt	katter	cats
en månad	månader	months
en svaghet	svagheter	weaknesses
en rörelse	rörelser	movements
en station	stationer	stations
en nation	nationer	nations

A small number of nouns in this group also change the vowel in the stem:

en stad	städer	towns
en bok	böcker	books (note spelling)

- (iv) Ett-nouns that end in a vowel in the singular add -n:

äpple	äpplen	apples
hjärta	hjärtan	hearts

- (v) This group – like English 'one sheep, two sheep' – adds no plural ending. It contains mainly Ett-nouns plus those En-nouns (denoting people) that end in -are, -er, -ande and -ende:

ett barn	barn	children
ett hus	hus	houses
ett rum	rum	rooms
ett problem	problem	problems

en lärare	lärare	teachers
ett apotek	apotek	pharmacies
ett system	system	systems
ett motiv	motiv	motives
ett bibliotek	bibliotek	libraries

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: en bloomma, bloommor; beelar; mawnader; epp-leh, epp-len; kvinnor; gahtor; flickor; hundar; mondahgar; hurstar; yuelar; poykeh; poykar; fawglar; shuekdoomar; katter; svahg-hayter; rur:relsser; stashoo:ner; natshoo:ner, en stahd, staidar; en book; burcker; yairtan; lairrareh.

Exercise 4

Give the singular definite form (noun + end article) of the following plurals:

1 höstar	7 lärare
2 gator	8 fåglar
3 stationer	9 månader
4 rörelser	10 hjärtan
5 pojkar	11 barn
6 hus	12 äpplen

7 Numbers 0–10

0 noll	6 sex
1 en/ett	7 sju
2 två	8 åtta
3 tre	9 nio
4 fyra	10 tio
5 fem

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: noll; ayn/ett; tvaw; tray; fü:ra; fem; sekss; shue; otta; nee-eh; tee-eh.

8 Question form

Simple statements are made into simple questions by putting the verb before the subject.

Du har ett äpple.

You have an apple.

Har du ett äpple?

Have you an apple?

Har du många äpplen?

Have you many apples?

Hur många äpplen har du?

How many apples do you have?

Jan är här.

Jan is here.

Är Jan här?

Is Jan here?

Vocabulary (Exercises 5, 6 and 7)

bra	good	på	on
i	in	mycket	very
som	who, whom, which	men	but också	also	vad	what

Exercise 5

Put the following into Swedish:

- 1 Boys and girls.
- 2 She has two cars.
- 3 We have four children.
- 4 They are women.
- 5 Stockholm has many streets.
- 6 The street has ten houses.
- 7 I have five apples.
- 8 The girl has three cats.
- 9 The teacher has a dog.
- 10 The car is good.
- 11 How many boys are in the house?
- 12 A woman who has many children.

In English, we rarely respond to a simple question such as 'Have you got an apple?' with a blunt 'Yes' or 'No'. It is more natural to say 'Yes, I have' or 'No, I haven't'. The equivalent Swedish idioms are as follows:

Har du ett äpple? Have you got an apple?

Ja, det har jag. Yes, I have.

Nej, det har jag inte. No, I haven't.

Är hon ung? Is she young?

Ja, det är hon. Yes, she is.

Nej, det är hon inte. No, she isn't.

Now respond to the following prompts, first positively and then negatively:

- 1 Har du ett hus?
- 2 Har hon barn?
- 3 Är de unga?
- 4 Är du lärare?
- 5 Är det jul?
- 6 Är han gammal?
- 7 Har de en flicka?
- 8 Har ni många katter?

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: yah; nay; inteh.

9 Everyday expressions

Here are some common conversational phrases you should learn. They may well be of use to you straight away.

Chapter 2

In this chapter you will learn:

- the present tense of verbs, including two verbs meaning 'go'
- the plural of 'the'
- some question words and more about word order
- the useful preposition på (meaning 'on', 'at', 'to', etc.)
- the negatives 'not' and 'no'
- the object pronouns ('me', 'him', etc.)
- the numbers from 11 to 20.

10 Present tense of verbs

The present tense of regular Swedish verbs is formed by adding -ar, -er or -r to the stem of the infinitive (that is, the infinitive minus its final -a). There are four classes of verbs but in the present tense Class 2 and Class 4 behave in the same way.

	1	2	3	4
	-AR	-ER	-R	-ER
Infinitive	jobba to work	köpa to buy	bo to live	komma to come
Present	jobbar	köper	bor	kommer

Jag jobbar i Stockholm.
I work in Stockholm.

Hon köper tre äpplen.
She buys three apples.

Vi bor i Sverige.
We live in Sweden.

De kommer till Småland.
They come to Småland.

It is not generally possible to predict which of the above classes a verb will belong to, though most verbs which have an infinitive without an -a ending belong to Class 3. There are, however, some Class 4 verbs without the infinitive -a and these merely add -r for the present tense like Class 3, e. g. gå 'to go, walk', present tense går.

A small number of verbs, e.g. höra (2) 'to hear', which have a stem ending in -r do not add an ending in the present tense. Thus: infinitive höra, present tense hör.

Swedish has no equivalent to the English continuous tense and 'do' construction. 'I am working', 'I do work' and 'I work' would all be jag jobbar in Swedish.

In Swedish the future is very commonly expressed by the use of the present tense together with a time word:

Vi kommer imorgon.

We shall come tomorrow.

Vocabulary

The class to which a verb belongs is given in brackets.

stanna (1)	to stop, stay
titta (1)	to look
åka (2)	to go, travel
tro (3)	to think, believe få (4)	to get
skriva (4)	to write

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: (10) yobba, yobbar; chur:pa, chur:per; boo:, boo:r; komma, kommer; gaw, gaw:r; hur:ra, hur:r; vee kommer imorron; (Vocabulary) stanna; titta; awka; troo; faw; skreeva.

Exercise 8

Give the Swedish for:

- | | |
|------------------|-------------|
| 1 I walk | 9 they live |
| 2 he works | 10 he is |
| 3 they look | 11 she has |
| 4 we travel | 12 we buy |
| 5 you (pl) write | 13 he stops |
| 6 she believes | 14 I travel |
| 7 you (sing) get | 15 I think |
| 8 you (pl) come | |

11 'Åka' and 'gå'

Notice that gå specifically means 'to walk'; it normally only corresponds to English 'go' in the sense of 'attend'.

gå i skolan	to go to school
gå på bio	to go to the cinema

English 'go' in the general sense of 'travel' is covered by åka. This verb also produces a useful series of phrases:

åka buss	to go by bus
åka tåg	to go by train
åka bil	to go by car
åka båt	to go by boat
åka cykel	to go by bike
åka skidor	to ski

Vi åker buss till Lund.

We're going by bus to Lund.

Vi åker tåg till Malmö.

We're going by train to Malmö.

Vocabulary (for Exercises 9, 10, 11 & 12)

nu	now
idag	today
snart	soon
göra	to do
så	so
svenska-n	Swedish

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION (11) gaw i skoo:lan; gaw paw bee-o; awka buss; awka tawg; awka beel; awka bawt; awka sückel; awka sheedor; vee awker buss till lund; vee awker tawg till malmur; (Vocabulary) sheeda; affair; vahru-huess; kontoor; skoo:la; skoo:g; frawn; nue; idahg; snahrt; yurra; saw; svenska; engelska.

Exercise 9

Give the Swedish for:

- The bus will come soon.
- We shall travel to Stockholm tomorrow.
- The boy and the girl go to school.
- How are you travelling to Sweden?
- I'm going by train.

- 6 They live in a house in the town.
- 7 She is ski-ing in the forest today.
- 8 The woman works in (på) a shop.
- 9 The girl comes from Malmö.
- 10 We go to the cinema.
- 11 He walks to the office in the town.
- 12 How many children are ski-ing now?
- 13 He is looking at (på) a house on Storgatan.
- 14 The boy will buy a bicycle tomorrow.

12 The definite article in the plural

We have seen (in Section 3) that the definite article in the singular is an end article and that it differs according to the gender of the noun. The plural article is also an end article. It does not vary according to gender but there is a change depending on the class of noun and its plural ending.

- | | | | |
|-----------|---------|---------------------|--------------|
| (i) -OR | flickor | adds -NA: flickorna | the girls |
| (ii) -AR | pojkar | adds -NA: pojkarna | the boys |
| (iii) -ER | städer | adds -NA: städerna | the towns |
| (iv) -N | äpplen | adds -A: äpplena | the apples |
| (v) - | barn | adds -EN: barnen | the children |

The En-nouns of group (v), i.e. nouns that end in -are, -er, -ande, -ende and denote people, are exceptions to the above rules in that they add -NA. (Those that end in -are drop the final -e before doing so.)

lärare	teachers	lärarna	the teachers
belgier	Belgians	belgierna	the Belgians
studerande	students	studerandena	the students

The indefinite and definite plural of man 'man' are irregular: män, männen.

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: flickoorna; poykarna; staiderna; epplenna; bahrnen; lairarna; belgee-er, belgee-erna; studayrandeh, studayrandenna; men, mennen.

Exercise 10

Give first the plural and then the plural plus definite article of the following nouns:

- | | |
|--------------|------------------|
| 1 en gata | 11 ett äpple |
| 2 ett barn | 12 en cykel |
| 3 ett hjärta | 13 en skog |
| 4 ett hus | 14 ett bibliotek |
| 5 ett tåg | 15 en station |
| 6 en skida | 16 en flicka |
| 7 ett bord | 17 en bil |
| 8 en höst | 18 en båt |
| 9 en fågel | 19 ett varuhus |
| 10 en stad | 20 en skola |

13 Question words

We have already seen (Section 8) that the verb comes before the subject in simple questions:

Kommer du? Are you coming?

This is called inverted word order or inversion and, as will be seen later, it is important in Swedish in many contexts. Such inversion also operates when questions are asked using question words:

hur	how
när	when
var	where

vem	who vad	what
varför	why
varifrån	where... from

Hur gammal är hon?
How old is she?

När kommer du till Lund?
When are you coming to Lund?

Var bor ni?
Where do you live?

Vem är flickan?
Who is the girl?

Vad köper han idag?
What is he buying today?

Varför är han här?
Why is he here?

Varifrån kommer hon?
Where does she come from?

Varifrån can be split into var... ifrån:

Var kommer hon ifrån?
Where does she come from?

One further question word is vilken, which changes according to the gender of the noun to which it applies: the form vilken is used with En-nouns, whereas vilket is used with Ett-nouns and vilka with plurals.

Vilken bok köper han?
Which book is he buying?

Vilket barn bor här?
Which child lives here?

Vilka böcker köper han?
Which books is he buying?

Vem 'who' can only refer to one person. If the 'who' refers to more than one person vilka is used:

Vem är han?
Who is he?

Vilka är de?
Who are they?

Vad is often used in exclamations where English would have 'how':

Vad bra!
How nice!

Vad duktig du är!
How clever you are!

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: nair; vahr; vem; vahrfur; vahrifrawn; vahr kommer hoon ifrawn; vilken; vilket, vilka; vah dukti due ay.

Exercise 11

Give the Swedish for:

- 1 How many books are you (sing) buying?
- 2 Why are you (pl) going to Sweden?
- 3 Who is writing the book?
- 4 Where does the woman live?
- 5 Where does the boy come from?
- 6 What does one (man) do?
- 7 Which girls live in the house?
- 8 How old is the boy?
- 9 When are they going to Stockholm?
- 10 What are you (sing) writing?

14 The preposition 'på'

På is a very common preposition used in expressions of both place and time. It also occurs in a large number of idiomatic phrases. Examples of some of these uses are given below.

Place:	på golvet	on the floor
	på bordet	on the table
	på väggen	on the wall
	på gatan	in/on the street
	på torget	in/on the square
	på landet	in the country
	på banken	at or to the bank
	på hotellet	at or to the hotel
	på kontoret	at or to the office
	på bio	at or to the cinema
	på teater	at or to the theatre
	på stationen	at or to the station
Time:	på söndag	on Sunday
	på hösten	in the autumn
	på kvällen	in the evening
Verbs:	se (4) på	to look at titta (1) på	to look at höra (2) på	to listen to
	vänta (1) på	to wait for
	tänka (2) på	to think of
Adjectives:	säker på	sure of trött på	tired of
	bra på	good at

15 Negatives

The most usual word for 'not' is inte and its usual position is immediately after the verb it is negating:

Jag är trött.	I am tired.
Jag är inte trött.	I am not tired.
Han hör.	He hears.
Han hör inte.	He doesn't hear.

Two other negatives (icke, ej) occur but in limited circumstances. Ej will, for instance, be seen on notices forbidding something:

Ej parkering!	No parking
Ej rökning!	No smoking

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: (14) paw golvet; paw veggén; paw torr-yet; paw landet; paw bankén; paw hawtellet; paw bee-o; paw te-ahter; paw surndah; paw kvellen; say paw; venta paw; tenka paw; saiker paw; (15) ay parkayring; ay rurkning.

16 Word order in main clauses

The word order in main clauses may be either normal or inverted. (A main clause is a clause capable of standing alone as a sentence in its own right.)

By normal order we mean that the statement starts with the subject, followed by the verb:

Jan åker buss.
Jan goes by bus.

By inverted order we mean that the subject follows the verb:

Åker Jan buss?
Is Jan going by bus?

As has already been suggested (Sections 8 and 13) inversion is the usual pattern in Swedish questions. Inversion of subject and verb is also very common in statements, for emphasis or balance. If a main clause begins with anything other than the subject, the verb must still come in second position and consequently the subject will follow it. That 'anything other' can be almost any element of the sentence, for instance, (a) an adverb or adverbial phrase; (b) the object in the clause; (c) an adjective describing the subject:

- (a) Nu är han här. Now he is here.
Imorgon kommer hon. Tomorrow she is coming.
På vintern snöar det. In winter it snows.
- (b) Sprit dricker hon aldrig. She never drinks spirits.
Kaffe dricker hon She drinks coffee all day.
hela dagen.
Det gör alla. Everyone does that.
- (c) Vacker är hon inte. She is not beautiful.

Notice that, when inversion takes place, common adverbs such as inte and aldrig come after the subject instead of after the verb:

Normal: Han kommer inte idag. He's not coming today.
Inverted: Idag kommer han inte. Today he's not coming.

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: paw vintern snu:rar de; spreet dricker hoon aldri; kaffe dricker hoon hayla dahgen; de yur:r alla.

Exercise 12

Rewrite the following sentences putting the words in italics at the beginning:

- 1 Vi går på bio idag.
- 2 De åker skidor på vintern.
- 3 Han har fem bilar nu.
- 4 Hon är inte så gammal.
- 5 Man tror det i Sverige.
- 6 En man och en kvinna bor i huset.
- 7 Han jobbar imorgon.
- 8 Vi talar inte svenska och engelska.

17 Object pronouns

The subject form of the personal pronouns has already been given (Section 4). The object forms are as follows:

Singular		Plural
mig	me	oss	us
dig	you	er	you
honom	him	dem	them
henne	her
den, det	it

Notice the pronunciation of mig, dig and dem.

Flickan tittar på honom. The girl looks at him.
Han ser henne inte. He doesn't see her.
Jag tror dig. I believe you.
Vi talar med dem. We talk to them.

Note the position of inte and other common adverbs. When there is a simple direct object pronoun inte will come after it; if, however, the object pronoun is accompanied by a preposition (such as på or med) inte will remain in its usual position immediately after the verb:

Vi ser henne inte. We don't see her.
Vi tittar inte på henne. We don't look at her.

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: may; day; honom; henneh; den; day; oss; ayr; dom.

Exercise 13

Give the Swedish for:

- 1 I work with him.
- 2 They are looking at us.
- 3 She listens to you (sing).
- 4 The woman is waiting for me.
- 5 The children believe you (pl).
- 6 He is talking to her.

Listen to the text if you have the cassettes, and practise reading it aloud:

Det är en fredag på vintern och Gunilla åker buss. På sommaren åker hon ofta cykel, men nu är hon för trött. Och det snöar. Gunilla är student. Hon är nitton år och studerar engelska, men på måndagar och fredagar jobbar hon på en bank mellan två och fem. På kvällen går hon ofta på bio eller på teater men idag är hon trött. Bussen stannar vid stationen och hon stiger av och går fram till kiosken. Där köper hon en tidning och två äpplen och sedan går hon hem. Vad bra att det är fredag!

Chapter 3

In Chapter 3 you will find out:

- how to express 'is' or 'of' in Swedish
- how to give instructions and commands
- how the modal auxiliary verbs ('can', 'shall', 'must', etc.) are used
- how adjectives and 'it' change form according to the noun they are used with
- how to count from 20 to a billion.

19 Possessive of nouns

Possession in English is expressed either by the use of 's' with an apostrophe or by an 'of' construction: 'John's car'; 'the capital of Sweden'. By far the most common method in Swedish is to add an -s to the noun: Jans bil; Sveriges huvudstad. Notice that there is no apostrophe. A definite article may be added to the first noun but never to the second noun:

pojken's skidor
the boy's skis

dagens rätt dish of the day

skolans rektor
the headmaster of the school

flickornas mor
the girl's mother

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: svery-ehss huevud-stahd;

| 2 the hotels of the country | 6 the children of the school |
| 3 the boys' boats | 7 the rooms of the house |
| 4 the woman's house | 8 the forests of Sweden |

20 The imperative

The imperative is the form of the verb used for giving commands. It varies according to the class of the verb; in Class 1 and Class 3 the infinitive and the imperative are identical, while in Class 2 and Class 4 the imperative is formed by dropping the -a of the infinitive:

	1	2	3	4
Infinitive	stanna	köra	tro	springa
Imperative	Stanna!	Kör!	Tro!	Spring!
	Stop!	Drive!	Believe!	Run!

Class 4 verbs with an infinitive that does not end in -a (e.g. gå) form their imperatives in the same way as Class 3 verbs: Gå! 'Walk!'

To make the imperative negative simply add inte in the usual way:

Stanna inte!	Don't stop!
Spring inte!	Don't run!

Two imperative constructions are often used to express 'please'. Literally, the expressions mean 'Be kind and...'; using var! the imperative of vara 'to be':

Var så god och kom in! Please come in!
 Var snäll och stanna här! Please stop here!

Var så god is used when offering someone something or allowing them to do something; var snäll is used when requesting or appealing.

Notice the spelling change from infinitive komma to imperative kom! Final m and n are rarely doubled even when the preceding vowel is short, as here.

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: churr; spring; vahr shaw good aw kom in; vahr shnell aw stanna hair.

Exercise 19

Give the Swedish for:

- | | |
|------------------------|---------------------|
| 1 Drive home! | 6 Please come soon! |
| 2 Don't come tomorrow! | 7 Study Swedish! |
| 3 Please write to me! | 8 Buy a boat! |
| 4 Listen to me! | 9 Look at him! |
| 5 Drink coffee! | 10 Wait for us! |

21 Modal auxiliary verbs

Modal auxiliary verbs have little meaning on their own but combine with the infinitive of another verb ('the main verb') to show such things as possibility, permission and intention.

The most common modal auxiliary verbs in Swedish are:

Infinitive	Present tense
kunna	kan	to be able to, can skola	ska (skall)	shall, will, is to vilja	vill	want to

-	måste	must, have to
få	får	be allowed to, may

In two-verb constructions they are used directly together with the infinitive of the main verb:

Han kan komma imorgon.	He can come tomorrow.
Vi ska åka till Sverige.	We shall travel to Sweden.
Jag vill läsa boken.	I want to read the book.
Hon får gå på bio.	She may go to the cinema.

In negative constructions inte is placed after the modal auxiliary verb:

Han kan inte komma.	He can't come.
Hon vill inte köra.	She doesn't want to drive.

The negative 'must not' is får inte in Swedish:
Du får inte köra. You must not drive.

- 7 I can't hear you!
- 8 When are we allowed to see him?
- 9 They can't open the door.
- 10 I want to listen to the music.

22 The indefinite form of the adjective

The pattern of adjective + noun constructions in Swedish depends on the gender of the noun and on whether they are being used with the indefinite article, the definite article, or a possessive word. The forms used with the indefinite article (and in a number of other situations) are:

En-nouns	Ett-nouns	Plural
no ending	-t	-a svensk	svenskt	svenska	Swedish
stor	stort	stora	big
dyr	dyrt	dyra	expensive
billig	billigt	billiga	cheap
kall	kallt	kalla	cold
tråkig	tråkigt	tråkiga	boring
lång	långt	långa	long
tjock	tjockt	tjocka	fat, thick
varm	varmt	varma	hot en svensk bil

ett dyrt hus billiga bilar en tjock bok ett kallt hotell tråkiga böcker

a Swedish car an expensive house cheap cars a thick book a cold hotel boring books

The adjective follows this pattern in the following circumstances:

(a) when used with the indefinite article (as above)

(b) when used with no article:

varm mat	hot food
varmt väder	hot weather
varma dagar	hot days

(c) when the adjective appears in the predicate (separated from the noun):

Maten är varm.	The food is hot.
Vädret är varmt.	The weather is hot.
Dagarna är varma.	The days are hot.

(d) when the adjective follows a number:

två tråkiga böcker	two boring books
fem tråkiga filmer	five boring films

(e) when used with indefinite adjectives e.g. någon (något, några) 'some, any'; ingen (inget, inga) 'no, none'; all (allt, alla) 'all'; varje 'every, each'; många 'many'. (Någon and ingen are dealt with in more detail in Chapter 9.)

ingen stor stol	no big chair
inget stort bord	no big table
inga stora lägenheter	no big flats

(f) when used with interrogative (question) adjectives e.g.

vilken (vilket , vilka) 'which':
vilken dyr biljett	which expensive ticket
vilket dyrt hotell	which expensive hotel
vilka dyra biljetter	which expensive tickets

IMITATED PRONUNCIATION: svensk; stoor; dürr; billi, billit, billi-a; kall; trawki, trawkit, trawki-a; lawng; chock; varm; varm maht; varmt vaider; varma dahgar; fem trawki-a filmer; nawgon; ingen; all (remember 'a' as in 'man'); var-yeh; inga stoo:ra laigenhayter; vilken dürr; bilyett

Exercise 21

- 6 We see many boring films every year.
- 7 Eva's flat is cold.
- 8 He drives an expensive Swedish car.
- 9 All thick books are boring.
- 10 Open the door! The house is too hot!

23 Irregular adjectives

There are a number of minor variations on the adjectival endings described above. The most important of them are:

- (a) Adjectives ending in a vowel add -tt in the Ett-form e.g. fri, fritt, fria 'free'.
- (b) Adjectives ending in vowel + t double the t in the Ett-form e.g. vit, vitt, vita 'white'.
- (c) Adjectives ending in -tt remain the same in the Ett-form e.g. trött, trött, trötta 'tired'.
- (d) Adjectives ending in a vowel + d change to -tt in the Ett-form e.g. god, gott, goda 'good'.
- (e) Adjectives ending in a consonant + d change to t in the Ett-form e.g. hård, hårt, hårda 'hard'.
- (f) Adjectives ending in nn drop an n in the Ett-form e.g. sann, sant, sanna 'true'.

- (g) Adjectives ending in m double the m in the plural e.g. tom, tomt, tomma 'empty'.
- (h) Adjectives ending in el or er drop the e in the plural e.g. vacker, vackert, vackra 'beautiful'; enkel, enkelt, enkla 'simple'.

The plural of gammal 'old' is gamla.

Liten 'small' is also irregular: liten, litet, små.

A small number of adjectives never change their form. Some of them are very common words e.g. bra 'good', fel 'wrong'.

A few of these adjectives can only be used in the predicate (not in front of a noun) e.g. sönder 'broken', slut 'finished'. Others can only be used before a noun e.g. stackars 'poor, unfortunate':

Stackars Jan!
Filmen är slut!

Poor Jan!
The film is finished.

Exercise 22

(d) 65	(i) 21 flickor	(n) 1992

25 'Den' or 'det'?

Den and det, both meaning 'it', refer respectively to En-nouns and Ett-nouns:

Var är boken? Jag har den här.
Where is the book? I have it here.

Var är kaffet? Jag har det här.
Where is the coffee? I have it here.

Den, however, is much more restricted in its use than det.

Den is used in the construction 'it is + adjective' where the 'it' refers to an En-noun:

Han har en cykel. Den är gammal.
He has a bicycle. It is old.

Hon har en hund. Den är vit.
She has a dog. It is white.

Det is used in the following circumstances – in some of which English would use a word other than 'it':

- (a) in the construction 'it is + adjective' where the 'it' refers to an Ett-noun:

Han har ett hus. Det är stort. He has a house. It is big.
Här är brevet. Det är långt. Here is the letter. It is long.

- (b) in the construction 'it is + noun' irrespective of the gender and number of the noun:

Det är en hund.	It's a dog.
Det är en stor hund.	It's a big dog.
Det är ett hotell.	It's a hotel.
Det är min bror.	It/He is my brother.
Det är min syster.	It/She is my sister.

- (c) where the 'it' is used in a general, impersonal way without reference to a specific noun:

Det regnar idag. It's raining today.

Det är svårt att förstå.
Hur gör man det?

It's hard to understand.
How do you do it?

- (d) corresponding to English 'there' in expressions such as:

Det finns ett hotell här.	There is a hotel here.
Det var en gång...	There was once...

- (e) In idiomatic responses such as Ja, det har jag (see Lesson 1 Drill 1).

Chapter 4

This chapter concentrates on verbs. You will learn:

- the distinction between 'weak' and 'strong' verbs
- the imperfect (past) tense of weak and irregular verbs
- how reflexive verbs work
- some more adjective patterns
- how to make a polite request
- how the order of adverbs in a sentence differs from English.

26 Weak and strong verbs

As in the other Germanic languages (including English) there are strong and weak verbs in Swedish.

Weak verbs are those verbs that form their past tenses by the addition of an ending:

Infinitive	Imperfect
to love	he loved
älska (1)	han älskade

Strong verbs are those verbs that form their past tenses by a change of vowel in the stem:

Infinitive	Imperfect
to drink	he drank
dricka	han drack

The vowel changes in Swedish and English strong verbs are not necessarily the same, nor are verbs that are strong in English necessarily strong in Swedish.

Of the four classes of verbs in Swedish (Section 10) Classes 1, 2 and 3 are weak, whereas all strong verbs are gathered as Class 4 irrespective of the particular vowel change.

27 The imperfect tense of weak verbs

The imperfect is the simple past tense of the verb. Swedish has only one form to cover the English possibilities of, for instance, 'he talked', 'he did talk' and 'he was talking'.

The imperfect tense of weak verbs is formed by the addition of -ade, -de, -te or -dde to the stem of the infinitive (that is, the infinitive minus its final -a).

	1	2a	2b	3
	-ADE	-DE	-TE	-DDE
Infinitive	kosta	stänga	röka	ske
	to cost	to close	to smoke	to happen
Imperfect	kostade	stängde	rökte	skedde

Skjortan kostade 210 kronor.

The shirt cost 210 crowns.

Han stängde av teven.

He switched off the TV.

Hon rökte cigaretter.

She smoked cigarettes.

Det skedde för tio år sedan.

It happened ten years ago.

There are a number of points to note about Class 2 verbs:

- Verbs with a stem ending in k, p, t, s or x belong to 2b: åka, köpa, möta ('to meet', imperfect mötte), läsa.
- Verbs with a stem ending in consonant + d or consonant + t only add -e in the imperfect: tända ('to light', imperfect tände); lyfta ('to lift', imperfect lyfte).
- Verbs with a stem ending in -mm or -nn drop the doubling before the imperfect ending: glömma ('to forget', imperfect glömde).

Exercise 28

Give the imperfect forms of the following verbs:

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1 betala (1) to pay | 6 kolla (1) to check |
| 2 sy (3) to sew | 7 växa (2) to grow |
| 3 följa (2) to follow | 8 känna (2) to know (people) |
| 4 byta (2) to exchange, change | 9 bero (3) to depend |
| 5 avsky (3) to detest | 10 lyfta (2) to lift |

28 Irregular verbs

There are many irregular verbs. So far we have met the following common irregular verbs:

Infinitive		Present	Imperfect
vara	to be	är	var
ha	to have	har	hade
heta	to be called	heter	hette
få	to get	får	fick
gå	to go	går	gick
säga	to say	säger	sade
göra	to do	gör	gjorde
se	to see	ser	såg
kunna	to be able	kan	kunde
skola	shall, will	ska	skulle
vilja	to want to	vill	ville
-	have to, must	måste	måste
komma	to come	kommer	kom

Sade is usually pronounced and often written sa.

Vocabulary (Exercises 29 – 30)

- 1 She was sewing a blue dress two days ago.
- 2 Göran bought four white shirts in (på) the department store.
- 3 He went home and changed clothes.

- 12 I couldn't hear what he said.
- 13 They loved children and played with them every day.
- 14 The trousers were too big and the anorak was too small.
- 15 I followed her to a restaurant.

29 The definite form of the adjective

We have already seen (Section 22) the indefinite construction of adjective + noun. The construction that is used together with the definite article is as follows:

En-nouns	Ett-nouns	Plurals
den gröna kjolen	det gröna bordet	de gröna kjolarna
the green skirt	the green table	the green skirts

Notice two things:

- (a) The adjective is in the -a form irrespective of gender and number. (When referring to one male, it sometimes ends in -e e.g. den unge pojken.)
- (b) There is a double definite article i.e. the end article on the noun and a new article which is either den, det or de depending on gender and number.

The adjective liten 'small' has an irregular definite form: den lilla flickan, det lilla huset, de små flickorna.

The definite construction is used in two sets of circumstances:

- (a) with the definite article (as above)
 (b) with the demonstrative words den/det/de här 'this', 'these' and den/det/de där 'that', 'those'.

den här nya vindjackan this new anorak det där billiga hotellet that cheap hotel de här gamla byxorna these old trousers

Exercise 30

Change the following indefinite expressions into the definite form:

- | | |
|--------------------|--------------------|
| 1 en vit skjorta | 6 en billig bil |
| 2 gamla kläder | 7 ett stort hus |
| 3 ett nytt hotell | 8 gröna klänningar |
| 4 en röd vindjacka | 9 ett långt tåg |
| 5 gula byxor | 10 stora hus |

strumpbyxor (pl)	tights
blus-en-ar	blouse
överrock-en-ar	overcoat
regnrock-en-ar	raincoat
träningssko-n-r	trainer
brun	brown
grön	green
grå	grey
svart	black smutsig	dirty
för	for
igår	yesterday

- That yellow blouse cost too much.
- I paid 450 crowns for this little anorak.

30 Polite requests

The following are common ways of asking and thanking for things.

Vad får det vara?

What would you like/What can I do for you?

Kan jag hjälpa dig/er?

Can I help you?

Jag skulle vilja ha hatten tack.

I'd like the hat, please.

Jag tar mössan tack.

I'll take the cap, please.

Kan jag få blusen tack?

Can I have the blouse, please?

Var snäll och visa mig skjortan.

Please show me the shirt.

Is that right? Is that everything?

Tack ska ni/du ha!

Thank you.

Tack så mycket!

Thank you very much.

Ja, tack!

Yes, please.

Nej, tack!

No, thank you.

Varsågod is used in a number of circumstances, particularly:

- (a) When someone has given you something and you have thanked them they will respond with Varsågod! i.e. it is equivalent to 'You are welcome'.
- (b) When someone gives you something they will often say Varsågod! i.e. equivalent to 'Here you are'.
- (c) When someone is giving you permission to do something or waving you on in front, they will often say Varsågod!

31 Reflexive verbs

Reflexive verbs involve the subject in performing some action upon itself and are accompanied by a reflexive pronoun such as 'myself' or 'herself' e.g. 'I washed myself'.

Reflexive verbs are far more common in Swedish than in English. The construction is as follows – notice that the reflexive pronoun is the same as the normal object pronoun (Section 17) except in the third person.

jag skyndar mig (1) du skyndar dig han/hon etc. skyndar sig vi skyndar oss ni skyndar er
de skyndar sig

I hurry
you hurry
he/she etc. hurries
we hurry
you hurry
they hurry

Some other very common reflexive verbs are:

gifta sig (2)	to get married
klä sig (3)	to get dressed
känna sig (2)	to feel
lägga sig (4, imp lade)	to lie down, go to bed
lära sig (2)	to learn
raka sig (1)	to shave
sätta sig (4, imp satte)	to sit down
tvätta sig (1)	to wash

Exercise 32

Fill in the appropriate reflexive pronoun:

- 1 Han rakar ___ på morgonen.
- 2 Vi gifte ___ för tio år sedan.
- 3 Hon skyndade ___ hem.
- 4 De lärde ___ svenska.
- 5 Känner du ___ trött?
- 6 Han sätter ___ på stolen.
- 7 Vi lägger ___ på kvällen.
- 8 Skynda ___, Erik!
- 9 Du tvättade ___ inte igår.
- 10 Nu ska ni lägga ___.

Lars	De ska passa till byxorna. Jag har inte råd att köpa nya byxor.

Lars	Storlek 45. Kan jag få prova dem?
Expediten	Varsågod! Passar de?
Lars	Ja, de är jättebra. Vad kostar de?
Expediten	799 kronor. Men kvaliteten...
Lars	Ja, ja – jag tar dem i alla fall. Kan jag få en påse? Och var finns det ett bra kafé?
	Nu måste jag dricka en kopp kaffe...

32 Grammar and idioms in the conversation

- Expressions of quantity in Swedish do not have any equivalent to the 'of' in 'a cup of coffee'.
en kopp kaffe a cup of coffee en par skor a pair of shoes
- When an indefinite noun form of a colour is needed the Ett-form of the adjective is used: i vitt 'in white'; i blått 'in blue'; i rött 'in red'.
- Vad har ni/du för... is a very common variant and more idiomatic than vad är...
- Kan jag få + noun is 'may I have...'; kan jag få + infinitive is 'may I...' asking for permission.
- The prefix jätte- (literally 'giant') is very commonly used to strengthen adjectives: jättebra 'really good'; jättestor 'really big'.

Exercise 33

Answer in Swedish these questions on the conversation:

- Vad vill Lars köpa?
- Varför ska skorna passa till byxorna?
- Vilken storlek har Lars?
- Hur mycket kostade skorna?
- Vad ville Lars dricka?

Exercise 34

Translate the conversation into English.

33 Word order of adverbs in main clauses

Word order in questions and the order of subject and verb in main clauses have already been mentioned (Section 8, 3, 16). Adverbs are words or phrases that modify the meaning of the verb or some aspect of the clause. Many, but far from all, adverbs are derived from adjectives, e.g. adjective 'beautiful', adverb 'beautifully'. Examples of adverbs not derived from adjectives are: 'soon', 'never', 'always'.

- (a) The normal position for simple adverbs in main clauses is immediately after the verb or, where there is an auxiliary verb, after the auxiliary verb:

Han läser aldrig.	He never reads.
Hon kommer snart.	She'll come soon.
Jag kan inte åka skidor.	I cannot ski.
Vi ska möjligen köpa huset.	We will possibly buy the house.

- (b) For reasons of style and emphasis, however, an adverb may often start the main clause (Section 16). In such cases there will be inversion of subject and verb:

Aldrig läser han.
 Snart kommer hon.
 Inte kan jag åka skidor.
 Möjligen ska vi köpa huset.

- (c) The main exception to (a) is that object pronouns, unless they are being particularly stressed, will stand between the verb and the adverb:

Han älskar henne inte.	He doesn't love her.
Vi ser honom aldrig.	We never see him.
Jag köpte den inte.	I didn't buy it.

Compare this to the order when the object is a noun:

Han älskar inte kvinnan. He doesn't love the woman.

- (d) There are, of course, other more complex adverbs, often phrases expressing manner, place or time. These would be placed after the simple adverbs and usually in the order (i) manner (ii) place (iii) time:

Han skyndade sig genast till kontoret i morse.
 He hurried at once to the office this morning.

It would be quite permissible to start the clause with any one of these adverbial elements as long as the subject and verb were then inverted:

I morse skyndade han sig genast till kontoret.

Exercise 35

Make the following sentences negative by putting inte in the correct position:

- 1 Evas mor var så fattig.
- 2 Jan tyckte om läraren.
- 3 Han kunde göra det.
- 4 Vi kan förstå svenska.
- 5 Jag dricker kaffe på morgonen.
- 6 Vi såg honom på tåget.
- 7 Erik köpte den igår.
- 8 Du kan gå på teater när du vill.

Exercise 36

Rewrite the following sentences putting the word or phrase in italics at the beginning:

- 1 Vi ska gå på bio imorgon.
- 2 Jag jobbar på banken varje dag.
- 3 Han åkte hem på kvällen.
- 4 Hon köpte fem par skor i Stockholm.
- 5 Ni bodde i Sverige för femton år sedan.

Chapter 5

Chapter 5 covers:

- asking and telling the time
- possessive adjectives/pronouns ('my/mine', etc.) and their form when used with nouns
- the imperfect tense of strong verbs
- when the definite article can be omitted
- relative pronouns ('who', 'that', 'which').

34 Clock time

The usual ways of asking and telling the time are as follows:

Q: Hur mycket är klockan?	What's the time?
Vad är klockan?
A: Klockan är ett.	It's one o'clock.
Den är ett.
Den är kvart i ett.	It's quarter to one.
Den är kvart över ett.	It's quarter past one.
Den är tjugo (minuter) i ett.	It's twenty to one.
Den är tjugo (minuter) över ett.	It's twenty past one.

The half-hour works on the pattern of 'half on the way to', not 'half past':

Den är halv två.	It's half past one.
Den är halv tre.	It's half past two.

The times between twenty past the hour and twenty to the hour are a little more awkward in that they use the half-hour as their baseline:

Den är fem i halv två.	It's twenty-five past one.
Den är fem över halv två.	It's twenty-five to two.

To ask or answer at what time something happens use the following pattern:

Q: Hur dags går tåget?	At what time does the train go?
När går tåget?	When does the train go?
A: Klockan ett.	At one o'clock.
Klockan halv två.	At half past one.
Klockan kvart över ett.	At quarter past one.

The 24-hour clock is commonly used for official purposes, in which case the spoken pattern is as follows:

Klockan ett och trettio.	01.30
Klockan tretton noll fem.	13.05

Notice these written abbreviations:

kl. = klockan = o'clock
 em. = eftermiddag = p.m. (afternoon)
 fm. = förmiddag = a.m. (forenoon)

CONVERSATION 1

Ulla	Goddag. När går tåget till Stockholm?
	Hello. When does the train for Stockholm leave?
Biljettexpeditören	Klockan femton och trettiofem.
(Ticket clerk)	Fifteen thirty-five.
Ulla	Hur dags kommer jag fram?
	What time do I arrive?
Biljettexpeditören	Klockan tjugo och tio.
	Twenty ten.

- Ulla Det är för sent. Jag vill komma fram senast klockan sju.
That is too late. I want to arrive at seven o'clock at the latest.
- Biljettexpeditören Det går ett tåg tretton och fyrtio. Då är ni framme i Stockholm arton och femtio.
There is a train leaving at thirteen forty. Then you are in Stockholm at eighteen fifty.
- Ulla Tack så mycket.
Thank you very much.

CONVERSATION 2

- Carina Du Göran, ska vi gå på bio i kväll?
Göran, shall we go to the cinema this evening?
- Göran När börjar filmen?
When does the film start?
- Carina Halv åtta.
Half past seven.
- Göran Det är för tidigt. Jag jobbar till kvart i sju idag.
It is too early. I am working until quarter to seven today.
- Carina Det var synd. Hur länge jobbar du imorgon?
That's a pity. How long are you working tomorrow?
- Göran Imorgon slutar jag tio minuter över sex.
Tomorrow I finish at ten past six.

35 Grammar and idioms in the conversations

You will find all the new words in these conversations in the vocabulary list at the end of the lesson.

- (a) Notice the use of the verb gå with the meaning 'depart' here:

Tåget går kl. 5.	The train leaves at 5.
Bussen går kl. 10.	The bus leaves at 10.

Railway timetables list avgående tåg 'departures' and ankommande tåg 'arrivals'.

- (b) 'To arrive': the two phrases komma fram and vara framme both mean 'to arrive' but they use different prepositions (till and i):

När kommer hon fram till Stockholm?
När är hon framme i Stockholm?
 When does she arrive in Stockholm?

- (c) Impersonal constructions such as det går ett tåg kl. 13.40 are very common in Swedish. In English this only occurs with the verb 'to be' e.g. 'there is a train at 13.40' whereas very many Swedish verbs may be used in this way:

Det kommer en buss snart.
 There is a bus coming soon.

Det sitter en flicka i rummet.
 There is a girl sitting in the room.

- (d) Du Göran! The use of du to attract someone's attention is common and does not have the abruptness an English speaker might expect.

- (e) Det var synd 'that's a pity'. Notice the use of the past tense. Swedish frequently uses the imperfect in exclamations of this sort:

Det var snällt!
That's kind!

Det var synd!
That's expensive!

Exercise 37

Give the Swedish for the following times:

- | | |
|---------------------|--------------------------|
| (a) 1 13.25 | 5 10.05 |
| 2 17.10 | 6 12.15 |
| 3 01.40 | 7 18.55 |
| 4 06.35 | 8 03.50 |
| (b) 1 five past two | 5 twenty-five past three |
| 2 half past twelve | 6 quarter past seven |
| 3 quarter to eight | 7 five to nine |
| 4 ten to eleven | 8 twenty-five to four |

36 Possessive adjectives and pronouns

The possessive adjectives are:

Singular	min (mitt, mina)	my din (ditt, dina)	your hans	his
	hennes	her
Plural	dess	its vår (vårt, våra)	our
	er (ert, era)	your
	deras	their

Note that hans, hennes, dess and deras do not have different forms for Ett-nouns and plurals, but min, din, vår and er do:

din bok	my book	hennes bil	her car
ditt hus	your house	hennes hus	her house
dina barn	your children	hennes kläder	her clothes

The possessive pronouns are identical to the possessive adjectives: this is unlike English, where a distinction is made between e.g. 'my' and 'mine', 'you' and 'yours'.

min bok	my book	Boken är min.	The book is mine.
ditt hus	your house	Huset är ditt.	The house is yours.

37 Possessive form of adjective + noun

We have already seen the indefinite and definite constructions of adjective + noun (Sections 22 and 29). When an adjective + noun construction is used after the possessive adjectives, the adjective will always use the -a form:

min svenska bil	my Swedish car
mitt svenska hus	my Swedish house
mina svenska böcker	my Swedish books

This pattern is also followed when the adjective + noun is preceded by a noun with the possessive -s (Section 19):

Jans svenska bil	Jan's Swedish car
pojkens svenska skidor	the boy's Swedish skis

Vocabulary (Exercises 38–41)

fot-en, fötter	foot
till salu	for sale
alltid	always

Exercise 38

Give the Swedish for:

- | | |
|---------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1 His shirt is black. | 6 The raincoat is hers. |
| 2 Our students are young. | 7 Your (pl) house is old. |
| 3 The shoes are mine. | 8 Their dog is white. |
| 4 Her hat is too big. | 9 My feet are small. |
| 5 The books are ours. | 10 It is her skirt. |

Exercise 39

Give the Swedish for:

- Do you want to buy their old clothes?
- His little boy is watching ('looking at') TV.
- Those books are mine and these books are yours.
- I don't like her white dress.
- Our old school was too small.
- Can you see my red trousers?
- The big room is hers and the small room is his.
- I can't read their long letter today.
- My green raincoat cost 100 crowns.
- She looked at Göran's yellow anorak.
- Where is the girl's new bicycle?
- That woman's Swedish car is for sale.

38 'Ja' and 'jo'

To answer 'yes' to a positive question use Ja.

To answer 'yes' to a negative question use Jo.

- | | |
|--------------------------------|---------------|
| Q: Är Anders hemma? | A: Ja. |
| Is Anders at home? | Yes. |
| Är Anders inte hemma? | Jo. |
| Isn't Anders at home? | Yes (he is). |
| Ska vi gå på bio? | Ja. |
| Shall we go to the cinema? | Yes. |
| Ska vi inte gå på bio? | Jo. |
| Aren't we going to the cinema? | Yes (we are). |

Drill 2

Respond with either ja or jo to the following questions:

- Bor hon inte i Sverige?
- Har du en svensk bil?
- Är han inte student?
- Studerar de inte svenska?
- Är du hemma klockan 6?
- Åker ni inte tåg till Lund?
- Kan vi komma imorgon?
- Vill hon inte köpa blusen?

39 The imperfect tense of strong verbs

Strong verbs are those verbs that form their past tenses by a change of vowel in the stem (see Section 26). The following are the most common vowel change patterns.

Infinitive		Present	Imperfect
(a) skriva	write	skriver	skrev
bita	bite	biter	bet
(b) sjunga	sing	sjunger	sjöng
bjuda	offer	bjuder	bjöd
supa	drink	super	söp
suga	suck	suger	sög
(c) frysa	freeze	fryser	frös
flyga	fly	flyger	flög
(d) spring	run	springer	sprang
finna	find	finner	fann
(e) dra	drag, pull	drar	drog
ta	take	tar	tog
(f) svälta	starve	svälter	svalt
stjäl	steal	stjäl	stal

Note the irregularities in the imperfect of dra, ta and stjäl.

The i in Group (a) is long whereas the i in Group (d) is short. Remember the convention in Swedish spelling: a long vowel is followed by a single consonant whereas a short vowel is followed by two or more consonants.

Exercise 40

Give the imperfect forms of the following strong verbs:

- | | |
|------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1 ljuga tell a lie | 4 njuta enjoy |
| 2 försvinna disappear | 5 tiga be silent, say nothing |
| 3 skina shine | 6 duga be suitable |

- | | |
|----------------------------------|-----------------------|
| 7 bryta break | 10 riva tear |
| 8 vinna win | 11 fara travel |
| 9 hinna manage, have time | 12 bära carry |

40 Omitting the indefinite article

The indefinite article is not used in Swedish in a number of situations where it would be expected in English, such as:

- (a) In simple statements of profession, nationality, religion or political and regional affiliation:

Bill är engelsman.

Bill is an Englishman.

Ulla är journalist.

Ulla is a journalist.

Lars är socialist.

Lars is a socialist.

Barbro är katolik.

Barbro is a Catholic.

Fredrik är stockholmare.

Fredrik is a Stockholmer.

However, if such statements are qualified by an adjective the indefinite article is used:

Han är en välkänd journalist.

He is a well-known journalist.

- (b) When a singular noun is used in a general sense:

Har du bil?

Have you got a car?

Ja, jag har bil.

Yes, I've got a car.

Exercise 41

Give the Swedish for:

- 1 Karin wrote a long letter.
- 2 The sun shone and the weather was beautiful.
- 3 Olof was a teacher in Malmö.
- 4 The boys ran to the station.
- 5 She disappeared at half past six.
- 6 He was a socialist but now he is a Catholic.
- 7 Pär sang to (för) us.
- 8 They always sang when they drank.
- 9 The young Englishman was silent.
- 10 I wanted to come but I didn't have time.

41 Relative pronouns

By far the most common relative pronoun is som ('who', 'whom', 'which', 'that'). It covers both singular and plural and both subject and object.

Jag skrev till en flicka som bor i Lund.
I wrote to a girl who lives in Lund.

Här är boken som jag köpte.
Here is the book that I bought.

Wherever the relative pronoun may be left out in English it may normally also be left out in Swedish:

Här är boken jag köpte.
Here is the book I bought.

Flickan jag älskar bor i Lund.
The girl I love lives in Lund.

Never place a preposition in front of som. Use instead the 'hanging' preposition as in idiomatic English.

Flickan (som) jag skrev till.

The girl to whom I wrote/The girl (who) I wrote to.

The possessive of the relative pronoun is vars ('whose' – singular and plural) or vilkas ('whose' – plural only).

Mannen, vars hus brann ner, skrattade.

The man whose house burned down laughed.

When vars/vilkas is followed by an adjective, that adjective will take the -a form:

Där står mannen, vars stora hus brann ner.

There stands the man whose big house burned down.

In very formal written style vilken (vilket, vilka) will occasionally be met as a relative pronoun. It must agree in gender and number, and it may be preceded by a preposition.

Huset, till vilket de flyttade, var mycket gammalt.

The house to which they moved was very old.

It would be much more natural style these days to use the 'hanging' preposition:

Huset, som de flyttade till, var mycket gammalt.
The house that they moved to was very old.

When the relative pronoun refers back to the sense of a whole statement as opposed to a particular word som cannot be used. In such cases vilket (always the Ett-form) must be used.

Hon pratar för mycket, vilket är tröttsamt.
She talks too much, which is tiring.

Notice the use of som in the following idiomatic construction used for emphasis. It covers the situations where English would use 'He is (was) the one who...' or 'It is (was) him who...'.
Det är han som skriver romaner.
 He's the one who writes novels.
Det var Gunilla som jobbade på banken.
 It was Gunilla who worked at the bank.

Drill 3

Replace the simple statements with the idiomatic response as follows:

Han läser svenska.

Det är han som läser svenska.

- 1 Jan åker till Sverige.
- 2 Hon köpte böcker.
- 3 Pojken sprang hem.
- 4 Anna tycker om barn.
- 5 Jag kan komma imorgon.
- 6 Lars söp.
- 7 Vi gick på bio igår.
- 8 Han sjöng.
- 9 Hon vann.
- 10 Göran ljuger.

CONVERSATION

- Expediten Hej, Anna! Det var länge sedan! Hur har du det nuförtiden?
Hello Anna! It's a long time since we met! How are things with you nowadays?
- Anna Tack fint. Och du?

- Expediten Tack, bara bra. Jag jobbar här nu. Men du...

I live in Gothenburg now but I am here because Mum is ill. She has flu.
- Expediten Så synd då! Hälsa henne så gott.
What a shame! Wish her all the best.
- Anna Det ska jag göra. Hon är redan på bättringsvägen men jag ska stanna ett par dagar till.

- Anna Kan jag få Dagens Nyheter och ett skrivblock, tack.

Yes, here you are. Anything else?
- Anna Nej tack, det är bra så.
No, thank you, that's fine.
- Expediten 7 kr. för tidningen och 24:50 för skrivblocket. Det blir 31:50.
7 crowns for the paper and 24:50 for the writing pad. That'll be 31:50.
- Anna Varsågod.
Here you are.
- Expediten Tack.
Thank you.

42 Grammar and idioms in the conversation

- (a) The idiomatic use of ha in such phrases as Hur har du det? 'How are things with you?' is very common.

Jag har det bra nuförtiden.

Things are fine for me these days.

Ulla har det svårt just nu.

Ulla is having a bad time of it just now.

Ha det bra!

All the best! Keep well!

- (b) Hälsa (literally 'to greet') is also used to send greetings as here. The verb with preposition hälsa på means 'to visit'.

Hälsa henne från mig!

Give her my best wishes!

Han hälsade på Gunilla när han var i Göteborg.

He visited Gunilla when he was in Gothenburg.

- (c) A careful distinction has to be made between the use of annan/annat/andra ('other') and ...till in statements such as:

Jag vill ha en kopp till.

I want another cup i.e. one more.

Jag vill ha en annan kopp.

I want another cup i.e. a different cup.

Kan du stanna en dag till?

Can you stay another day i.e. one more?

Kan du komma en annan dag?

Can you come another day i.e. a different day?

Chapter 6

This chapter introduces:

- conjunctions ('and', 'or', 'since', 'although', etc.) and their effect on word order
- the perfect and pluperfect tenses ('have done', 'had done') of weak and strong verbs
- a checklist of verb forms to help you learn them.

43 Conjunctions

Conjunctions are words such as 'and', 'or', 'since', or 'while' that are used to link clauses together. Conjunctions do not cause inversion.

Co-ordinating conjunctions link main clauses (clauses which can stand alone as a sentence). Common co-ordinating conjunctions include:

eller	or
för	for men	but utan	but
och	and
så	so

Han skrev ett brev och hon skrev en roman.

He wrote a letter and she wrote a novel.

De hade mycket pengar, så de köpte en stor bil.

They had a lot of money so they bought a big car.

Subordinating conjunctions link subordinate clauses to main clauses. (Subordinate clauses cannot stand alone as sentences.)

Common subordinating conjunctions include:

att	that
då	when, as, since
därför att	because
eftersom	as, since
fast, fastän	although
för att	in order to
förrän	before, until
innan	before
medan	while
när	when
om	if
sedan	after
så att	so that
tills	until
utan	but

Ni sade, att ni skulle komma imorgon.
You said that you would come tomorrow.

Hon kom inte, eftersom hon var sjuk.
She didn't come as she was ill.

Vi ska tala svenska, medan vi är i Sverige.
We shall speak Swedish while we are in Sweden.

Notice the following points about particular conjunctions.

Att may often be omitted (like 'that' in English):

Jag tror, (att) han kommer imorgon.
I think (that) he's coming tomorrow.

Innan is used where the main clause is positive:

Jag kände henne, innan jag kom till Sverige.
I knew her before I came to Sweden.

Förrän is used where the main clause is negative:

Jag kände henne inte, förrän jag kom till Sverige.
I didn't know her before I came to Sweden.

Utan is used only where the first clause is negative and the second clause contradicts it:

Han är inte gammal utan ung.
He is not old but young.

44 Word order in subordinate clauses

The distinction between main clauses and subordinate clauses is important for word order in Swedish. Subordinate clauses may be easily recognised by the fact that they are usually introduced by:

(a) a relative pronoun e.g. som, vilken (Section 41):

Jag känner hans son, som jobbar på banken.
I know his son who works at the bank.

(b) a question word e.g. varför, hur (Section 13) when used in reported speech:

Han frågade, varför jag älskade hans dotter.
He asked why I loved his daughter.

(c) a subordinating conjunction e.g. att, när (Section 43):

Vi vet, att svenska är ett lätt språk.
We know that Swedish is an easy language.

We have already seen that inversion can take place in main clauses in a number of circumstances (Section 8, 13, 16). In subordinate clauses, however, inversion never takes place and thus word order is always subject first, followed by verb:

MAIN
Han talar med en flicka,
He is talking to a girl

SUBORDINATE
som han träffade i Lund.
whom he met in Lund.

We have also learned that the normal position of adverbs in main clauses is after the verb or, where there is one, the auxiliary verb (Sections 16, 33). In subordinate clauses, however, a number of very common adverbs must stand in front of the verb or the auxiliary verb:

Main	Deras barn tittar inte på TV. Their children don't watch TV.
Subordinate	De säger, att deras barn inte tittar på TV. They say that their children don't watch TV.
Main	Han ska inte läsa tidningen idag. He is not going to read the paper today.
Subordinate	Han säger, att han inte ska läsa tidningen idag. He says that he is not going to read the paper today.

Among the adverbs that move in front of the verb in subordinate clauses are:

aldrig	never
alltid	always
bara	only
gärna	willingly
hellre	preferably
helst	most of all
inte	not
kanske	perhaps möjligen	possibly
ofta	often
redan	already
snart	soon
sällan	seldom

Exercise 42

Start the following statements with the phrase Han sade, att and adjust the word order accordingly:

- 1 Han kunde inte förstå svenska.
- 2 Hon tyckte inte om honom.
- 3 De skulle gärna gå på bio.
- 4 Hon var kanske lite för gammal.
- 5 Biljetterna kostade ofta för mycket.
- 6 De köpte sällan sprit.
- 7 Lars ville hellre bo i Malmö.
- 8 Jag måste kanske studera i Sverige.

45 More about word order

We have seen that inversion must occur in certain circumstances in main clauses and that it never occurs in subordinate clauses. We can now add another situation in which inversion takes place in the main clause. If a subordinate clause comes before a main clause there will be inversion in the main clause:

Innan han läser tidningen, äter han frukost.
Before he reads the paper, he eats breakfast.

Om vi hade pengar, skulle vi äta en dyr middag.
If we had money, we would eat an expensive dinner.

Eftersom hon bantar, ska hon inte äta lunch.
Since she is slimming, she won't eat lunch.

Subject and verb are also inverted after direct speech or a quotation. (Swedish uses a dash rather than inverted commas to mark these.)

- Jag skulle vilja ha soppa, sade hon.
'I'd like to have soup', she said.

This is a good point at which to revise the various points about word order. Refer to Sections 8, 13, 15, 16, 17, 21, 33, 43, 44.

Exercise 43

Start the following sentences with the subordinate clause and adjust the word order accordingly:

- 1 De äter middag på en restaurang, eftersom de har pengar.
- 2 Vi bodde i Malmö, innan vi flyttade till Göteborg.
- 3 Hon träffade honom ofta, när hon gick på bio.
- 4 Jag vet, att du inte tycker om romaner.
- 5 Ni ska inte köpa nya kläder, medan ni är i Sverige.
- 6 Jag förstår inte, varför du jobbar så mycket.
- 7 Biljetten kostar bara 5 kr., om du åker buss.
- 8 Vi ska stanna hemma idag, eftersom det regnar.

Exercise 44

Give the Swedish for the following:

- 1 You must buy those new clothes before the shops close.
- 2 Berit is twelve years old but very small.
- 3 She talked too much while she was here.
- 4 We went to the theatre although the tickets were very expensive.
- 5 Open the door before you go in (in)!
- 6 I understand that he doesn't want to study Swedish.
- 7 The two men waited until the bus came.
- 8 She wants to write the letter before she talks to ('with') you.
- 9 I would buy a very big car if I had money.
- 10 Children are never happy (glad) when the sun isn't shining.

46 The perfect and pluperfect tenses of weak verbs

These compound past tenses (the English 'I have talked' and 'I had talked' forms) are formed by using the present or imperfect tense of ha + the supine. (The Swedish supine is equivalent to what is known as the past participle in most languages.) The supine is invariable. The supine ending, which is added to the stem of the infinitive, depends on the class of the verb:

	-at	-t	-tt
Infinitive	servera	beställa	avsky
	to serve	to order	to detest
Supine	serverat	beställt	avskytt

Perfect:

Servitrisen har serverat lunch.

The waitress has served lunch.

Vi har beställt soppan.

We have ordered the soup.

Jan har alltid avskytt soppa.

Jan has always detested soup.

Pluperfect:

Berit hade rekommenderat restaurangen.

Berit had recommended the restaurant.

Hon hade beställt ett bord för tre.

She had ordered a table for three.

Vi hade inte trott henne.

We had not believed her.

Notice that the position of the simple adverbs such as inte and aldrig is the same as with the modal auxiliary verbs (21, 33).

47 The supine of strong verbs

We have seen that the strong verbs (Class 4) form their tenses by changing the vowel in the stem. Their perfect and pluperfect tenses are formed, as above, with ha but they have a vowel change in the supine as well as adding the unchangeable ending -it. We can, therefore, now complete the pattern of vowel changes given in Section 39:

	Infinitive	Present	Imperfect	Supine
(a)	sprida spread	sprider	spre d	spridit
(b)	sjunka sink	sjunker	sjö nk	sjunkit
	hugga chop, cut	hugger	hö gg	huggit
(c)	skryta boast	skryter	skrö t	skrutit
(d)	brinna burn	brinner	brann	brunnit
(e)	fara travel	far	for	farit
(f)	skära cut	skär	skar	skurit

Vårt nya hus har brunnit ner.
Our new house has burnt down.

Han var ledsen, därför att hans båt hade sjunkit.
He was sad because his boat had sunk.

When you meet a new strong verb it is best to learn the vowel changes along with the meaning.

48 More about past tenses

There are many common irregular verbs, modal verbs, and strong verbs with less frequent vowel change patterns than those listed above. Make sure that you learn the parts of all those we have met so far:

Infinitive		Present	Imperfect	Supine
bli	become	blir	blev	blivit
få	get	får	fick	fått
förstå	understand	förstår	förstod	förstått
gå	go	går	gick	gått
göra	do	gör	gjorde	gjort
ha	have	har	hade	haft
heta	be called	heter	hette	hetat
komma	come	kommer	kom	kommit
kunna	be able	kan	kunde	kunnat
lägga	lay, put	lägger	lade	lagt
–	must	måste	måste	måst
säga	say	säger	sade (sa)	sagt
sätta	set	sätter	satte	satt
se	see	ser	såg	sett
skola	will, shall	ska	skulle	skolat
ta	take	tar	tog	tagit
vara	be	är	var	varit
veta	know	vet	visste	vetat
vilja	want	vill	ville	velat
äta	eat	äter	ät	ätit

Exercise 45

Change the following sentences from present to perfect tense:

- Jonas ser flickan i affären.
- Han skryter om den nya bilen.
- Jag förstår inte vad han säger.
- Hon arbetar på en bank i staden.
- De köper varma kläder till vintern.

Exercise 46

Change the following sentences from imperfect to pluperfect:

- 1 Eva parkerade bilen på en bred gata.
- 2 Hon visste inte att Johan var hemma.
- 3 De bodde i en liten lägenhet i Göteborg.
- 4 Man började servera lunch kl. 12.
- 5 Han lade böckerna på bordet och gick ut.

Exercise 47

Give the Swedish for:

- 1 Niklas has written many books.
- 2 Have you spoken to ('with') my daughter?
- 3 How had she come to Stockholm? She had travelled by train.
- 4 It was he who had done it.
- 5 She had seen many beautiful towns when she was young.

CONVERSATION

På restaurangen
At the restaurant

Anders Goddag. Jag skulle vilja ha ett bord för två. Min fru kommer nog om ett par minuter. Skulle vi kunna få ett bord på terrassen?

Hello, I should like a table for two. My wife will probably be here in a couple of minutes. Would it be possible to get a table on the terrace?

Servitrisen Javisst, det går säkert bra. Men vi har inte börjat servera lunch än.
Yes, of course, that will certainly be all right. But we haven't started to serve lunch yet.

Anders Hurdags börjar ni servera då? Vi har lite bråttom.
At what time do you start serving then? We are in a bit of a hurry.

Servitrisen Vi börjar kvart i tolv.
We start at a quarter to twelve.

Anders Det är inte så farligt. Då kan vi väl vänta. Det är inte så långt till stationen, eller hur?
That's not so bad. We can easily wait, then. It's not far to the station, is it?

Servitrisen Nej, det är det inte. Stationen ligger precis om hörnet... Varsågod, den här vägen. Här har ni ett trevligt bord.
No, it isn't. The station is just around the corner... This way, please. Here is a nice table for you.

Anders Kan jag få se matsedeln, tack.
Can I see the menu, please?

Servitrisen Varsågod. Vad får det vara att dricka?
Here you are. What would you like to drink?

Anders Jag tar ett glas lättöl, tack. Var ligger toaletten, förresten?
I'll have a glass of light beer, please. Where is the toilet, by the way?

Servitrisen Den ligger därborta.
It's over there.

49 Grammar and idioms in the conversation

- (a) Det går säkert bra 'that will certainly be all right'.
The verb gå has a number of idiomatic uses of this sort:

Går det bra att sitta här?
Is it all right to sit here?

- (b) Idiomatic English uses frequent tag questions that are often repetitions based on part of the verb. Most such situations in Swedish are covered by using eller hur:

Han har två bilar, eller hur?
He has two cars, hasn't he?

Hon studerar engelska, eller hur?
She is studying English, isn't she?

- (c) To describe where something is, Swedish much prefers ligga 'to lie, be situated' where English usually uses the verb 'to be':

Stockholm ligger i Sverige.
Stockholm is in Sweden.

Evas böcker ligger på bordet.
Eva's books are on the table.

Chapter 7

In chapter 7 you will learn:

- the present participle and other ways of translating the English '-ing' form
- the special reflexive pronoun that expresses 'his/her/their own'
- the future tense
- the conditional skulle ('would/should').

50 The present participle

The present participle in English is the '-ing' form of the verb as in 'running', 'loving', 'talking'. Its Swedish equivalent is very simple to form:

- (a) Verbs with an infinitive ending in -a simply add -nde:
leka 'to play', lekande 'playing'; brinna 'to burn', brinnande 'burning'.
- (b) Verbs with an infinitive without -a add -ende: slå 'to strike', slående 'striking'; stå 'to stand', stående 'standing'.

The present participle in Swedish is most frequently used as an adjective:

Det gråtande barnet sprang hem.
The weeping child ran home.

Vi såg en fängslande film.
We saw a fascinating film.

When used as an adjective, the present participle never changes its form.

The present participle may also be used as an adverb:

Hon är en påfallande intelligent flicka.
She is a remarkably intelligent girl.

The adverb never changes its form.

The present participle may sometimes be used as a noun:

En studerande behöver läsa många böcker.
A student needs to read many books.

Hon har ett mycket vackert leende.
She has a very pretty smile.

Such nouns are En-nouns when they refer to people (plural -) and Ett-nouns when they refer to things or abstracts (with plural -n).

A number of common verbs have slightly irregular present participles which are based on a now outdated form of the infinitive:

be	to pray, ask	bedjande	praying
bli	to become	blivande	becoming dra	to pull	dragande	pulling
ge	to give	givande	giving
ta	to take	tagande	taking

51 English '-ing' forms

The present participle in Swedish is used in many fewer situations than English '-ing' forms and is rarely used except as described above. (Remember that Swedish has no equivalent to the English continuous tenses.) The following guidelines will help you to select the correct Swedish construction where English has an '-ing'.

- (a) Where the '-ing' form is used as a verb in a two-verb construction, Swedish will use two full verbs:

He sat reading the newspaper.
Han satt och läste tidningen.

They stood waiting for the bus.
De stod och väntade på bussen.

Exceptions to this only usually occur with the verbs
komma, gå and bli:

She came running but he remained sitting.
Hon kom springande men han blev sittande.

- (b) Where the '-ing' form represents an abbreviated clause in English, Swedish will have a full clause:

I saw two boys (who were) playing in the garden.
Jag såg två pojkar som lekte i trädgården.

- (c) Where the '-ing' form is used as a noun, Swedish will use att + infinitive:

Travelling in Sweden is very expensive.
Att resa i Sverige är mycket dyrt.

He loves skiing.
Han älskar att åka skidor.

It is quite normal to have a preposition before the att + infinitive:

They looked at each other without saying anything.
De tittade på varandra utan att säga någonting.

A following adjective that refers to such an att + infinitive construction takes the ett-form:

Att ljuga är dumt.
Lying is stupid.

Vocabulary

lyssna på (1)	to listen to
möbel-n, möbler	(piece of) furniture
spännande	exciting
motion-en	exercise
övertaska (1)	to surprise
om	about
konst-en-er	art

ringa till (2)	to telephone, ring
intresserad av	interested in

soldat-en-er	soldier
marschera (1)	to march
in i	into
brottslig	criminal
avskaffa (1)	to abolish

sluta (1)	to stop

Exercise 48

Give the Swedish for the following:

- 1 She sat in the chair listening to the news.
- 2 They like buying old furniture.
- 3 Anders was reading an exciting new novel.
- 4 Skiing is very good exercise.
- 5 He knows surprisingly much about art.
- 6 We wrote a letter instead of ringing them.
- 7 She was very interested in hearing about my life.

- 8 The new chairman is very boring.
- 9 He never stops talking.
- 10 Have you ever heard a dog singing?
- 11 The soldiers came marching into the town.
- 12 Going by train without paying is criminal.
- 13 We must abolish the present system.
- 14 I can see many birds sitting in the tree.
- 15 She says that she doesn't like driving.

52 'Sin', 'sitt', 'sina'

Possessive adjectives and pronouns have already been discussed in Section 36. Swedish, however, also has special reflexive forms which are used for 'his', 'her', 'its' and 'their' in particular circumstances. In effect, they mean 'his own', 'her own', 'its own' and 'their own' and thus avoid the ambiguity in an English statement such as 'He kissed his wife'. (Whose wife?) Study the following examples:

Hon kysste sin man.

She kissed her (own) husband.

Hon kysste hennes man!

She kissed her (someone else's) husband.

De tycker inte om deras barn.

They don't like their (someone else's) children.

De tycker inte om sina barn.

They don't like their (own) children.

Han skickade ett brev till hans hem.

He sent a letter to his (someone else's) home.

Han skickade ett brev till sitt hem.

He sent a letter to his (own) home.

Sin (sitt, sina), like the reflexive pronoun sig (Section 31), refers back to the subject of the clause. It follows then that it never goes with the subject of the clause; 'his/her/its/their' with the subject of a clause will always be either hans, hennes, dess or deras.

Hans fru är otroligt snobbig.

His wife is unbelievably snobbish.

Fru Lindgren och hennes man längtar till Italien.

Mrs Lindgren and her husband long to go to Italy.

Eva tycker, att hennes man är tråkig.

Eva thinks that her husband is boring.

The form of sin depends on the number and gender of the noun it goes with:

Han gick hem till sin fru, sitt hus och sina barn.

He went home to his wife, his house and his children.

CONVERSATION

På biblioteket At the library

Bo Hejsan, Kristina! Jag hoppas att jag inte stör.

Vad håller du på med? Du ser lite deppad ut.

Hi there, Kristina! I hope I'm not disturbing (you). What are you working on? You look a bit depressed.

Kristina Deppad, säger du! Jag är så arg. Skolan har just börjat efter sommarlovet och vi har en ny lärare. Han tycker att hans lektioner är jättebra men de är urdåliga. Och nu måste vi skriva en uppsats om sommarlovet till imorgon! Och så är det ju torsdag idag och på torsdagarna brukar jag gå på diskotek med Åke!

Depressed, you say! I'm so angry. School has just started after the summer break and we have a new teacher. He thinks that his lessons are really good but they are awful. And now we have to write an essay for tomorrow about the summer break! It is, after all, Thursday today and on Thursdays I usually go to the disco with Åke!

Bo Vem är Åke?
Who is Åke?

Kristina Det är min pojkvän. Åke Holm. Är han inte en släkting till dig, förresten?
He is my boyfriend. Åke Holm. Isn't he some sort of relation of yours, by the way?

Bo Jo, det är han, tyvärr. Jag ser honom inte så ofta. Är han inte lite för...
Yes, he is, unfortunately. I don't see him that often. Isn't he a little too...

Kristina Gammal! Du låter precis som pappa! Jag är ju sexton år. Man kan inte sitta inne och plugga hela tiden!
Old! You sound just like Dad! I am sixteen, after all. You can't sit indoors and swot the whole time!

Bo Förlåt, förlåt. Nu måste jag se om jag kan hitta några böcker och kassetter.
Sorry, sorry. Now I must see if I can find some books and cassettes.

53 Grammar and idioms in the conversation

- (a) Jag hoppas 'I hope'. This -s ending of a verb will be dealt with in Chapter 11.
- (b) The verb hålla (literally 'to hold, keep') has many useful idiomatic uses. A few of them are as follows:

Hålla på med + noun or pronoun means 'to be busy with', 'to be working on':

Vad håller du på med nu?
What are you working on now?

Jag håller på med en uppsats.
I'm working on an essay.

Hålla på att + infinitive means 'to be in the process of'. This construction is often used to make up for the lack of an English-type continuous tense:

Hon håller på att läsa boken.
She is (in the process of) reading the book.

Hålla med (någon) om (något) means 'to agree with (someone) about (something)':

Vi håller med dig om det.
We agree with you about that.

- (c) In the verb phrase se . . . ut ('to look, appear') the adjectives that describe how someone or something looks are placed between se and ut:

Han ser frisk och lycklig ut.
He looks healthy and happy.

- (d) Like jätte-, which we have already met, the prefix ur- is very commonly attached to adjectives to strengthen them in slangy Swedish: jättestor 'really big', 'gigantic'; urdu 'utterly stupid'.

- (e) Bruka + infinitive means 'to be in the habit of...' and is commonly used where English would have 'usually' or, in the imperfect tense, 'used to':

De brukade läsa böcker på kvällen men nu tittar de på TV.
They used to read books in the evening but now they watch TV.

- (f) Ju is one of a number of small adverbs which are used very commonly in Swedish but are impossible to provide a simple English equivalent for. Study the following examples:

Du har ju aldrig träffat honom.
You've never met him, of course.

Han har ju studerat svenska.
He has, after all, studied Swedish.

Jag var ju yngre då.
I was, of course, younger then.

(g) Det är min pojkvän.
Do you remember this construction from Section 25b?

(h) Swedish uses the preposition till and the personal pronoun where English uses 'of' and the possessive pronoun in phrases such as:

en släkting till dig a relation of yours

en vän till honom
a friend of his

(i) Notice the difference between Swedish and English in the matter of '... years old':

Hon är sexton år (gammal).
She is sixteen (years old).

54 The future tense

There are a number of ways of expressing future action in Swedish depending on the degree of 'intention' that is involved:

(a) Use the present tense usually together with an expression of future time (see Section 10):

Vi reser till England imorgon.
We are travelling to England tomorrow.

This is probably the most common form, especially to express unstressed future events.

(b) komma att + infinitive:

Jag kommer att bli lycklig men aldrig rik.
I shall be happy but never rich.

Komma att is making a forecast but one that has little to do with will or intention. It is thus particularly common when the subject is an impersonal one:

Det kommer att snöa imorgon.
It's going to snow tomorrow.

(c) tänka + infinitive:

Jag tänker köpa en ny bil imorgon.
I'm intending to buy a new car tomorrow.

(d) ska + infinitive (see Section 21):

Jag ska gå på bio imorgon.
I shall go to the cinema tomorrow.

This usually expresses a considerable degree of intention and English speakers (influenced by English 'shall/will') tend to over-use it. Notice, though, impersonal constructions of the type:

Det ska bli skönt att se henne.
It'll be nice to see her.

Det ska bli fest imorgon.
There's to be a party tomorrow.

55 The conditional

The conditional is formed by using skulle + infinitive. (Skulle is the imperfect of skola.) The conditional is, of course, most frequently used with 'if' clauses:

Om jag var rik, skulle jag resa till Paris.
If I was rich, I would travel to Paris.

Very occasionally the older subjunctive form vore 'were' will be met:

Om jag vore mycket rik, skulle jag resa till Bali.
If I were very rich, I should travel to Bali.

Skulle may also be used to express politeness or uncertainty:

Jag skulle vilja ha en kopp kaffe.
I should like a cup of coffee.

Jag skulle inte tro honom.
I shouldn't believe him.

Exercise 51

Give the Swedish for:

- 1 He would be happy if he had a son.
- 2 We're intending to sell our boat.
- 3 I shall swot tomorrow.
- 4 It's going to rain soon.
- 5 The boys are going to England tomorrow.

Past time is expressed as follows:

this morning (past)
 this afternoon (past) yesterday evening
 last night

Habitual or general time is expressed as follows:

på morgonen (etc.)

in the morning (etc.)

The plural is also commonly used for habitual time:

på kvällarna (etc.)

in the evenings (etc.)

Present time is expressed by:

nu på morgonen
 nu på eftermiddagen
 i kväll
 i natt

this morning
 this afternoon this evening tonight

Future time is expressed by:

i eftermiddag
 i kväll
 i natt
 imorgon bitti

this afternoon (later)
 this evening (later)
 tonight (later)

Parts of the day more distant from the present than these are dealt with quite simply by a combination of day and part of day as follows:

i måndags kväll
på lördag kväll

last Monday evening
next Saturday evening

59 Weeks, months and years

januari	January
februari	February
mars	March
april	April
maj	May
juni	June
juli	July
augusti	August
september	September
oktober	October
november	November
december	December

With the months, the preposition i expresses all possibilities of past, habitual, present and future time; i januari can thus mean 'last January', 'generally in January', 'this January' or 'next January'. The context, especially the tense of the verb, will demonstrate which is intended. (This might seem awkward but the English 'in January' can be used in exactly the same way.)

i fjol	last year
förra året	last year
i år	this year
nästa år	next year
vecka-n-or	week
förra veckan	last week
denna vecka/den här veckan	this week
nästa vecka	next week

Notice that denna (or detta for Ett-nouns) 'this', dessa 'these' does not take an end-article. It thus differs from den här.

60 Seasons and festivals

vår-en-ar	spring
sommar-en, somrar	summer
höst-en-ar	autumn
vinter-n, vintrar	winter
jul-en-ar	Christmas
påsk-en-ar	Easter
pingst-en-ar	Whitsun

Present time with the seasons and festivals is expressed by using the preposition i:

i vår (etc.) this spring (etc.)

Habitual or general time is expressed with the preposition på as follows:

på hösten (etc.) in the autumn (etc.)

The plural is also commonly used with habitual time:

på höstarna (etc.) in autumn (etc.)

Future time is expressed by using either the preposition i or nästa 'next':

i vår (etc.) next spring (etc.)
nästa vår (etc.) next spring (etc.)

Past time is expressed by using the preposition i and the suffix -as:

i julas (etc.) last Christmas (etc.)

(Notice the slight spelling change in i somras och i vintras.)
Past time may also be expressed with förra together with the end article:

förra julen (etc.) last Christmas (etc.)

61 Dates

The ordinal numbers (usually written as figures but pronounced as ordinals) preceded by den are used for the day of the month in dates:

den 6 (sjätte) juli the sixth of July

If the name of the day is also mentioned it will take the end-article:

måndagen den 6 juli Monday, the sixth of July

The year is written as a numeral and spoken according to the following pattern:

1966	nittonhundrasextiosex
1857	artonhundrafemtiosju

Notice that, unlike English, Swedish does not miss out the word 'hundred'. The useful suffix -talet is used to express decades or centuries:

1990-talet (nittonhundranittioalet)	the 1990s
80-talet (åttioalet)	the 80s
1900-talet (nittonhundratalet)	the 20th century
1800-talet (artonhundratalet)	the 19th century

Make sure that you are familiar with the last two examples in particular: Swedish always uses the pattern 'the nineteen hundreds', 'the eighteen hundreds' to describe centuries.

Exercise 52

Write out fully in Swedish words the following ordinal numbers and dates:

- | | |
|------------|--------------------|
| 1 64th | 4 11th |
| 2 27th | 5 the 16th century |
| 3 3.5.1989 | 6 1827 |

- | | |
|---------------------|-----------------------|
| 7 the 30s | 10 Thursday, the 12th |
| 8 Friday, 22nd July | 11 1743 |
| 9 132nd | 12 the 1870s |

62 Prepositions of time

In addition to the various prepositional expressions of time given above, study and learn the following uses:

efter after

Han kom efter klockan 8.
He came after 8 o'clock.

från from

Boken är från 1800-talet.
The book is from the 19th century.

före before

Jag ska ringa före klockan 10.
I'll ring before 10 o'clock.

i for, per

This preposition has a number of uses but in expressions of time it does not correspond to English 'in'. Its most common use is to cover English 'for', i.e. duration of time:

Hon hade bott där i fem år.
She had lived there for five years.

In this sense, it is often omitted:

Hon hade bott där fem år.

In the following situations where English does not normally have a preposition (though we might sometimes use 'per') i is used in Swedish:

en gång i sekunden	once a second
två gånger i månaden	twice a month
150 kilometer i timmen	150 kilometres an hour

There are two exceptions:

en gång om dagen	once a day
en gång om året	once a year

om in (... time)

Where English 'in' can be more fully stated as 'in... time', i.e. meaning 'at the end of a stated duration of time':

Han åker hem om en vecka.

He's going home in a week('s time).

De kommer om en timme.

They are coming in an hour('s time).

på for, in

På is equivalent to English 'for' in negative clauses:

Vi har inte sett dem på femton år.

We haven't seen them for fifteen years.

På is equivalent to English 'in' in expressions like:

Han läste hela boken på en timme.

He read the whole book in an hour.

Vi kan komma dit på några timmar.

We can get there in a couple of hours.

På is equivalent to English 'in' with the -talet expressions mentioned in Section 61:

på sjuttonhundratalet
in the 18th century

till to, until, for

Till is equivalent to English 'to/until' in expressions such as:

Från den andra till den sjätte september.

From the second to the sixth of September.

Till is equivalent to English 'for' in expressions such as:

Han ska vara hemma till jul.
He'll be at home for Christmas.

Jag har köpt biljetter till i kväll.
I've bought tickets for tonight.

under during

Han var i Norge under kriget.
He was in Norway during the war.

vid at

Hon blev statsminister vid 50 års ålder.
She became prime minister at 50 years of age.

Remember that Swedish has no equivalent to 'at' with clock time:

Vi ska äta middag klockan 6.
We shall have dinner at 6 o'clock.

Nor does Swedish have a preposition before specific dates of days or years:

De kom till Sverige den 3 september.
They came to Sweden on the 3rd of September.

Hon studerade i England 1957.
She studied in England in 1957.

Give the Swedish for the phrases in italics in the following letter:

Edinburgh (1) 23rd July 1992

Kära mamma och pappa!

Nu har jag varit i Skottland (2) for three weeks och allt går bra. Men vädret är förfärligt – det är faktiskt ganska kallt här (3) in the summer. Språkkursen i Edinburgh är mycket givande men den slutar (4) next week.

(5) Last Sunday hälsade jag på Era vänner Karin och Karl Lundgren. Lundgrens flyttade hit (6) fifteen years ago och de säger att de inte har varit i Sverige (7) for four years. De vandrar ofta i fjällen och jag tänker följa med (8) next Saturday.

Nu måste jag skynda mig. Jag ska träffa några kompisar (9) before 6 o'clock och vi ska gå på bio – jag har varit på bio (10) twice a week sedan jag kom hit.

Jag åker hem (11) in two weeks' time.

Stor kram

Eva.

63 Letter writing

Notice the sender's address. The full address is given on the reverse of the envelope and just the town and date at the top of the letter.

Kära... Dear...! is used for friends and relations and the name is followed by an exclamation mark: Kära Eva! Kära Jan! Kära Eva och Jan! You will still meet the form Käre! applied to a man in the singular: Käre Jan!

Very informal letters may start with Hej! with or without the name: Hej Eva!

There is no equivalent to a formal 'Dear Sir...'. Business or formal letters go straight into the text without any introduction.

Era vänner... Du, Dig, Din/Ditt/Dina, Ni, Er, Er/Er/Era are often given capitals in letters.

At the close of letters Kram is the equivalent of 'Love'. Hälsningar or Hjärtliga hälsningar ('Greetings' or 'Sincere greetings') are also usual in informal letters. Business and formal letters end with Med vänlig hälsning ('With a friendly greeting').

Notice the use of Lundgrens ('the Lundgrens' or 'the Lundgren family'). There is no definite article:

Jag bor hos Lundgrens.

I am living with the Lundgrens.

64 Grammar and idioms in the conversation

- (a) Hos is equivalent to 'chez' in French or 'bei' in German and is usually translated into English as 'at...s house/place' or 'with':

Vi var hos Eva igår.
We were at Eva's place yesterday.

Hon var hos tandläkaren igår.
She was at the dentist's yesterday.

Other examples of its use are as follows:

Felet ligger hos honom.
The fault lies with him.

Man kan läsa om detta hos Shakespeare.
You can read about this in Shakespeare.

- (b) Notice the construction with född 'born':

Jag är född 1942.
I was born in 1942.

Napoleon föddes 1769.
Napoleon was born in 1769.

If the person referred to is alive, use the present tense; if the person is dead, use the imperfect (the s-ending will be dealt with in Lesson 11).

- (c) Many Swedish adverbs of place have different forms depending on whether they express location, motion towards or motion away from. The same distinction is still sometimes found in English e.g. 'here', 'hither', 'hence'.

Location	Motion to	Motion from
här here	hit hither	härifrån hence där there	dit thither	därifrån thence
hemma at home	hem (to) home	hemifrån from home

- (d) When used in the definite form, hel 'whole' does not take a double definite article but the end article must still be suffixed. Other adjectives that behave in the same way are halva 'half', förre 'last', båda 'both':

Jag var där hela dagen.
I was there the whole day.

Han har läst halva boken.
He has read half the book.

Båda flickorna kan simma.
Both the girls can swim.

Chapter 9

In this chapter you will learn:

- how to say 'someone', 'anyone' and 'no one' and related words
- how adverbs can be formed from adjectives
- how to talk about the points of the compass
- how the comparative ('better/more ...') and superlative ('best/most ...') of adjectives and adverbs are formed
- when to use att or för att with the infinitive.

65 'Någon, något, några' and 'ingen, inget, inga'

The words någon (något, några) 'some', 'someone', 'something', 'any', 'anyone', 'anything' and ingen (inget, inga) 'no', 'no one', 'none', 'nothing', may be either adjectives (that is, they go with a noun) or pronouns (that is, they stand in place of a noun). As adjectives they must, of course, agree with the gender and number of the noun they go with; as pronouns they will have 'natural' gender – that is, 'someone' will be en-form and 'something' will be ett-form.

Pronouns

Ingen lyssnade på honom.

No one listened to him.

Någon har stulit min bil.

Someone has stolen my car.

Hörde du något?

Did you hear something?

Adjectives

Har du inga kläder?

Haven't you any clothes?

Han visade mig några gamla foton.

He showed me some old photos.

Vi har inget bröd hemma.

We have no bread at home.

There are also the words någonting 'something', 'anything', ingen 'nothing', någonstans 'somewhere', 'anywhere' and ingenstans 'nowhere':

Någonting hände men jag såg ingenting.

Something happened but I saw nothing.

Han sitter någonstans men jag ser honom ingenstans.

He is sitting somewhere but I don't see him anywhere.

In normal speech the forms of någon are pronounced nån (någon), nåt (något), nåra (några), nånting (någonting) and nånstans (någonstans). These forms sometimes appear in very colloquial writing.

Remember (Section 22) that någon and ingen etc. are followed by the indefinite form of the adjective.

Finally, a word of caution: when the English 'some' actually means 'a little', 'a piece of', 'a drop of' and the like, the normal Swedish is the unchangeable word lite:

Vill du ha lite vin? Nej, tack, men jag kanske kan få lite vatten?

Would you like some wine? No thanks, but perhaps I can have some water?

66 'Inte någon', etc.

There are two sets of circumstances in which ingen/inget/inga/ingenting/ingenstans cannot be used and inte någon/något/några/någonting/någonstans must be used instead. These situations are:

- (a) When 'no one', 'nothing' etc. is the object of a compound tense (the perfect, pluperfect or modal auxiliary + infinitive) in a main clause:

Han säger ingenting. He says nothing.

BUT

Han har inte sagt någonting. He hasn't said anything.

Vi köpte inga kläder. We didn't buy any clothes.

BUT

Vi ska inte köpa några kläder. We shan't buy any clothes.

- (b) When 'no one', 'nothing' etc. is the object in a subordinate clause irrespective of the tense:

Han sade att han inte hade sett någon.

He said that he hadn't seen anyone.

De säger att de inte ska köpa några nya kläder.

They say that they won't buy any new clothes.

Han säger att boken inte ligger någonstans i rummet.

He says that the book isn't anywhere in the room.

- 10 He didn't want to meet any new friends.
- 11 I would like some bread and some beer.
- 12 No intelligent woman believes it.

67 Formation of adverbs

We have already met (in Sections 33 and 44, and elsewhere) many simple adverbs such as inte, aldrig, alltid, ofta, nu, snart, förr ('before'). There are many more. Remember that adverbs never change their form.

- (a) Many other adverbs may easily be created from adjectives by adding -t to the En-form of the adjective. Such adverbs will consequently have exactly the same form as the Ett-form of the adjective (see Sections 22 and 23):

dålig bad
varm warm

dåligt badly varmt warmly

knappt scarce vacker beautiful ovanlig unusual knappt scarcely vackert beautifully ovanligt unusually

Boken är ovanligt intressant.
The book is unusually interesting.

Han kysste henne knappt.
He hardly kissed her.

- (b) A small number of the adjectives that end in -lig can also form adverbs either by adding -en to the En-form or -vis to the Ett-form of the adjective:

möjlig possible
trolig probable naturlig natural lycklig fortunate

möjligen possibly troligen probably naturligtvis naturally, of course lyckligtvis fortunately

These adverbs in -en and -vis are not identical in use and meaning to those ending in -t. The adverbs in -en and -vis are clausal adverbs, i.e. they modify the meaning of the whole clause in which they occur:

Troligen kommer han till Stockholm imorgon.
He is probably coming to Stockholm tomorrow.

The adverbs in -t, however, are adverbs of manner, place, time, cause or degree and only modify one element in the clause:

Hon har en ovanligt vacker röst.
She has an unusually beautiful voice.

- (c) We have already noticed (Section 64c) that some adverbs have different forms for location and motion. Here are further examples:

Location
var
where

Motion to vart whither, where to

Motion from varifrån from where

borta	bort	bortifrån
away	away	from away
framme	fram	framifrån
at the front	forward, to the front	from the front
inne	in	inifrån
inside	in(wards)	from inside
nere	ner	nerifrån
down	down(wards)	from below
uppe	upp	uppifrån
up	up(wards)	from above
ute	ut	utifrån
out, outside	out(wards)	from outside

68 Compass directions

A number of very useful patterns can be made using the compass directions norr 'north', söder 'south', öster 'east' and väster 'west'.

- (a) i norr in the north i söder in the south
i öster in the east i väster in the west

Kiruna ligger i norr och Malmö ligger i söder.

Kiruna lies in the north and Malmö lies in the south.

- (b) norr om north of söder om south of öster om east of väster om west of Uppsala ligger norr om Stockholm.

Uppsala lies north of Stockholm.

- (c) norrut northwards, to the north söderut southwards, to the south österut eastwards, to the east västerut westwards, to the west

Från Arvidsjaur cyklade vi norrut mot polcirkeln.

From Arvidsjaur we cycled northwards towards the Arctic Circle.

- (d) norifrån from the north söderifrån from the south österifrån from the east
västerifrån from the west

De väntade på tåget norifrån.

They were waiting for the train from the north.

- (e) The adjectival forms of the compass directions are norra 'northern', södra 'southern', östra 'eastern', västra 'western':

Hur länge har han bott i norra Sverige?

How long has he lived in northern Sweden?

The prefixes nord-, syd-, öst-, väst- may also be used:

Lund ligger i Sydsverige.

Lund lies in southern Sweden.

Malmö är en sydsvensk stad.

Malmö is a southern Swedish town.

These prefixes are used to form the intermediate points of the compass: nordvästra 'north-western' etc.

- (f) Although norr, söder, väster and öster are in fact nouns, they cannot be used except as described above. Expressions such as the English 'The North is beautiful' must be rephrased:

Landets norra del är vacker.

The northern part of the country is beautiful.

Exercise 56

Give the Swedish for:

- Gävle lies south of Söderhamn but north of Uppsala.
- He has been indoors all day but now he is out.

- 3 It is probably a very bad book.
- 4 It has been an unusually warm day today.
- 5 The forests in western and northern Sweden are really big.
- 6 Fortunately we had already bought tickets.
- 7 Her young daughter dances beautifully.
- 8 I don't like driving south when the sun is shining.
- 9 They drank coffee out in the garden.
- 10 Where are you cycling to this evening?

69 Comparative and superlative of adjectives

- (a) The most common way of comparing adjectives in Swedish is by adding the ending -are for the comparative or -ast for the superlative to the en-form of the adjective:

fin fine	finare finer	finast finest
glad happy	gladare happier	gladast happiest
billig cheap	billigare cheaper	billigast cheapest

Note that adjectives whose basic form ends in -er, -el or -en will lose the -e:

enkel simple	enklare simpler	enklast simplest
---------------------	------------------------	-------------------------

- (b) A small number of very common adjectives have a vowel change and add the endings -re or -st:

låg low	lägre	lägst
lång long	längre	längst
trång narrow	trängre	trängst

få few	färre	-
ung young	yngre	yngst
tung heavy	tyngre	tyngst
stor big	större	störst
grov coarse	grövre	grövt
hög high	högre	högst

- (c) As in English, a very small number of adjectives have completely irregular comparisons:

god/bra	bättre	bäst
good	better	best
gammal	äldre	äldst
old	older	oldest
liten/lite(t)	mindre	minst
small/little	smaller/less	smallest/least dålig	sämre	sämst
bad	worse	worst
dålig/ond	värre	värst
bad	worse	worst
många	fler	flest
many	more	most
mycket	mer	mest
much	more	most

The distinction between the comparisons of dålig will be dealt with in Section 70.

- (d) A large number of adjectives (but of limited variety) form comparatives and superlatives with mer and mest:

typisk	mer typisk	mest typisk
typical	more typical	most typical

To this group belong all adjectives that have the ending -isk, all present participles (spännande, mer spännande, mest spännande 'exciting', 'more exciting', 'most exciting') and all past participles (intresserad, mer intresserad, mest intresserad 'interested', 'more interested', 'most interested'). Present participles have been dealt with in Section 50 and past participles will be met in Section 85.

70 Comments on the comparative and superlative

- (a) The comparatives ending in -are and -re never change their forms:

en finare bil	den finare bilen	finare bilar
a nicer car	the nicer car	nicer cars

- (b) The superlatives ending in -ast and -st only add endings when the adjective stands in front of the noun in the definite form:

den finaste bilen	det finaste huset	de finaste husen
the nicest car	the nicest house	the nicest houses
den största bilen	det största huset	de största husen
the biggest car	the biggest house	the biggest houses

Note that the -ast forms add -e whereas the -st forms add -a.

In all other circumstances there is no ending:

De stora husen är finast. The big houses are nicest.

- (c) Adjectives that form the comparative and superlative with mer and mest will, of course, take their normal adjectival endings.
- (d) There is a difference in use between dålig, sämre, sämst and dålig, värre, värst. Sämre, sämst imply there is less of some good quality whereas värre, värst imply there is more of some bad quality:
- Göran är den sämsta studenten.
Göran is the worst (i.e. least competent) student.
- Brita är den värsta studenten.
Brita is the worst (i.e. most badly behaved) student.
- (e) Mer and mest are used to express amount whereas fler and flest are used to express number:

Fler studenter studerar tyska än svenska.

More students study German than Swedish.

Hon dricker mer kaffe än jag.

She drinks more coffee than me/I (do).

- (f) Notice the use of än 'than' in the last two examples. A personal pronoun following än will always be in the subject form if it could be in the subject form in English:

Min bror är mycket intelligentare än jag.

My brother is much more intelligent than me/
than I (am).

- (g) God/bra have the comparative and superlative forms godare, godast when they refer to how something tastes:

Min syster bakar godare bakelser än du.

My sister bakes better (tasting) cakes than you.

- (h) There are many common set phrases that use superlative forms, often together with a noun and no article. (See also Section 90f.) Here are a few of them:

i bästa fall	at best, in the best case
i första hand	in the first place
i sista hand	in the last resort
i högsta grad	highly, to the highest degree

Exercise 57

Give the Swedish for:

- It is warmer this year than last year.
- Henrik works in the biggest office in the town.
- I have a younger brother and an older sister.
- This shop is more expensive than that one.
- These cakes are best.
- We have never read a more exciting novel.

- 7 The winters in northern Sweden are coldest.
- 8 The smallest men have the longest cars.
- 9 My mother looks much younger than my father.
- 10 He kisses more girls than me.
- 11 This is the longest street in Lund.
- 12 The richest man lives in the most beautiful house.

71 Comparative and superlative of adverbs

Adverbs formed from adjectives have exactly the same comparative and superlative forms as the adjective. Remember that adverbs never change their form.

kallt	kallare	kallast
coldly	more coldly	most coldly
ovanligt	ovanligare	ovanligast
unusually	more unusually	most unusually lite(t)	mindre	minst
a little	less	least

A number of other adverbs also have comparative and superlative forms:

fort	fortare	fortast
quickly	more quickly	most quickly
gärna	hellre	helst
willingly	more willingly	most willingly
ofta	oftare	oftast
often	more often	most often

CONVERSATION

Samtal på tåget

Conversation on the train

Fru Nilsson Har ni inte varit här i norra Sverige förut?

Mrs Nilsson Haven't you been here in northern Sweden before?

Herr Ljunggren Jo. Men bara en gång för många år sedan.

Mr Ljunggren Yes. But only once many years ago.

Fru Nilsson Varifrån kommer ni egentligen?

Where do you come from actually?

Herr Ljunggren Från Skurup i Skåne. Femton kilometer väster om Ystad.
From Skurup in Skåne. Fifteen kilometres west of Ystad.

Fru Nilsson Jaså... Skurup. Jag har aldrig träffat någon som kommer därifrån... tidigare, menar jag.

I see... Skurup. I have never met anyone who comes from there... before, I mean.

Herr Ljunggren Och ni? Var är ni bosatt?

And you? Where are you resident?

Fru Nilsson I Stockholm. Jag har bott där rätt länge. Men jag växte upp i Rottneros i Värmland. Inte så långt från Sunne. Min far var faktiskt lärare i Sunne. Det var på trettioalet, förstås. Min man och jag flyttade till Stockholm 1939. Han gick bort för två år sedan.

In Stockholm. I have lived there for a really long time. But I grew up in Rottneros in Värmland. Not so far from Sunne. My father was actually a teacher in Sunne. That was in the thirties, of course. My husband and I moved to Stockholm in 1939. He passed away two years ago.

- Herr Ljunggren Mm... Förfärligt väder vi har idag.
Mm... Terrrible weather we are having today.
- Fru Nilsson Ja, det har regnat mest hela dagen.
Och igår var det lika dåligt.
Yes, it's been raining pretty well the whole day. And yesterday was just as bad.
- Herr Ljunggren Jag tror att jag ska ta semester i juli nästa år. Då är vädret lite stadigare. Och det är ju varmare i juli än i augusti här i norr. Men titta där!
I think I'll take my holidays in July next year. The weather is a bit more stable then. And, after all, it's warmer in July than in August here in the north. But look over there!
- Fru Nilsson Va? Vad var det?
What? What was it?
- Herr Ljunggren Det var en älg i skogsbrynet.
There was an elk at the edge of the forest.

72 Grammar and idioms in the conversation

- (a) Notice the important distinction between the adverbs långt 'far', 'a long way' and länge 'long', 'a long time':

Hur långt är det från Stockholm till Uppsala?
How far is it from Stockholm to Uppsala?
Hur länge ska vi stanna här?
How long are we going to stay here?

The comparative and superlative forms längre and längst cover both time and distance, however:

Ska vi stanna längre?

Shall we stay longer?

Det är längre till Stockholm än till Uppsala.

It's farther to Stockholm than to Uppsala.

- (b) In Section 70f we saw the use of än 'than' for making comparisons. Other ways of comparing things are lika... som 'as... as' and inte så... som 'not as... as':

Vädret är lika dåligt som igår.

The weather is as bad as yesterday.

Tåget är inte så fullt som igår.

The train is not as full as yesterday.

Note the use of lika or inte så depending on whether the sentence is positive or negative. Also, as in English and as exemplified in the conversation, the comparison can be implied without being stated fully:

Jag är lika trött idag.

I'm just as tired today (as I was yesterday).

73 The infinitive and 'att'

You will have noticed that the infinitive, as in English, is sometimes preceded by the infinitive marker att ('to') and sometimes not (see Sections 5, 21 and 51c).

Att is never used in two-verb constructions in which the first verb is a modal auxiliary (Section 21): få, måste, kunna, skola, vilja, böra ('ought', bör, borde, bort) and låta ('to let' or 'to have something done', låter, lät, låt).

De lät bygga ett nytt hus bredvid det gamla.

They had a new house built alongside the old one.

Vi bör resa till Värmland i sommar.

We ought to travel to Värmland this summer.

Han kunde inte arbeta i måndags.

He couldn't work last Monday.

Att is not used in two-verb constructions in which the first verb is a so-called 'modal equivalent'. The most common of these are:

behöva (2)	to need
bruka (1)	to be in the habit of
börja (1)	to begin, start
försöka (2)	to try
lova (1)	to promise
sluta (1)	to stop
tänka (2)	to think
vägra (1)	to refuse

Hon vägrade äta kött.

She refused to eat meat.

Eva brukar resa till England varje år.

Eva usually travels to England every year.

Han brukade gå på bio tre gånger i veckan.

He used to go to the cinema three times a week.

Remember (Section 53e) that bruka in the present tense will often translate the English adverb 'usually' and in the imperfect tense will translate the English 'used to'.

In other two-verb constructions att should be used to link the verbs. (See also Section 51.)

De tyckte om att gå i fjällen.

They liked to walk in the mountains.

Göran hatade att åka buss.

Göran hated going by bus.

74 'För att'

English very often uses a simple 'to' in two-verb constructions when 'in order to' is implied:

He went to the shop to buy shoes.

She went running every day to get fit.

In all situations where the English means 'in order to' Swedish will have för att:

Hon reste till England för att lära sig språket.

She went to England (in order) to learn the language.

Vi sprang hem för att lyssna på nyheterna.

We ran home (in order) to listen to the news.

Vocabulary

genom fönster, fönstret-

through window

Exercise 58

Give the Swedish for:

- Jonas travelled south to visit Eva.
- We like swimming in the sea.
- You ought to read every book he writes.
- They used to like listening to the birds.
- I need to buy new shoes before Christmas.

- We were happy to be able to meet your mother.
- Göran usually cycles to the office.
- She refused to look in through the window.
- He built a new house in the forest in order to be able to watch the elks.

Chapter 10

Chapter 10 introduces:

- the names of countries, nationalities and languages
- different ways of translating öwheret
- the use of question words in subordinate clauses
- compound verbs and how they function in a sentence
- numbers used as nouns.

75 Countries, nationalities and languages

Learn the following names of countries, nationalities and languages. You will notice that in most cases the name of the language and that of the female inhabitant may be very simply derived from the adjective. The same is true in a few cases for the male inhabitant.

Country	Adjective	Language
Danmark	dansk	danska
Denmark	Danish	Danish
Finland	finsk	finska
Finland	Finnish	Finnish
Island	isländsk	isländska
Iceland	Icelandic	Icelandic
Norge	norsk	norska
Norway	Norwegian	Norwegian
Sverige	svensk	svenska
Sweden	Swedish	Swedish
Ryssland	rysk	ryska
Russia	Russian	Russian
Tyskland	tysk	tyska
Germany	German	German
Holland	holländsk	holländska
Holland	Dutch	Dutch

England	engelsk	engelska
England	English	English
Frankrike	fransk	franska
France	French	French
Spanien	spansk	spanska
Spain	Spanish	Spanish
Italien	italiensk	italienska
Italy	Italian	Italian
Amerika	amerikansk	engelska
America	American	English

All names of countries are treated as Ett-nouns and all the names of languages are treated as En-nouns:

Hon är mycket stolt över sin svenska.

She is very proud of her Swedish.

Sverige är fantastiskt!

Sweden is fantastic!

Male		Female
dansk-en-ar	Dane	danska-n-or svensk-en-ar	Swede	svenska-n-or tysk-en-ar	German	tyska-n-or norrman-nen, män	Norwegian	norska-n-or engelsman-nen, män	Englishman/woman	engelska-n-or fransman-nen, män	Frenchman/woman	fransyska-n-or NB
holländare-n-	Dutchman/woman	holländska-n-or amerikanare-n-	American	amerikanska-n-or italienare-n-	Italian	italienska-n-or finne-n-ar	Finn	finska-n-or islänning-en-ar	Icelander	isländska-n-or ryss-en-ar	Russian	ryska-n-or
spanjor-en-er	Spaniard	spanjorska-n-or NB

Note that, with the exception of the names of the countries, all of the above are spelled without capital letters. When referring to the population of the country as a whole or to groups of mixed sex the male forms are used:

Många svenskar tar semester på vintern.
Many Swedes take holidays in winter.

76 'Where' in questions and in relative clauses

In English 'where' covers both questioning and relative functions:

Question	Where are you going today?
Relative	I know a place where we can get caviar.

In a question Swedish will have var or vart depending on whether motion or position is involved (see Section 67c):

Var kan man äta fransk mat i Stockholm?

Where can one eat French food in Stockholm?

Vart ska ni resa imorgon?

Where are you travelling to tomorrow?

Var and vart must also be used in indirect questions:

Jag undrar var man kan äta fransk mat.

I wonder where one can eat French food.

Jag undrar vart ni ska resa imorgon.

I wonder where you are travelling to tomorrow.

As a relative, however, Swedish uses där or dit depending on whether position or motion is involved (see Section 64c):

Han vet en restaurang, där man kan äta fransk mat.

He knows a restaurant where one can eat French food.

Jag vet en restaurang, dit vi kan gå.

I know a restaurant where we can go.

An easy way of recognising whether it should be var/vart or där/dit is that if 'where' can be replaced by 'in/at which' or 'to which' the Swedish will be där or dit.

Vocabulary

turist-en-er	tourist
landskap-et-	province
enda	only (adj)
få tag i	to get hold of
stilig	stylish, elegant
spara (1)	to save
söka (2)	to look for
arbete-t-n	work

Exercise 59

Insert the correct form of var/vart or där/dit in the following sentences:

- 1 Vet du Ulla bor nuförtiden?
- 2 Mora är en stad, det finns många turister.
- 3 Ska vi gå på en restaurang, vi kan äta italiensk mat?
- 4 Dalarna är ett landskap, många turister åker.
- 5 Jag frågade mig, vi tänkte cykla.
- 6 Är Sverige det enda land, man talar svenska?
- 7 Eva jobbar på en bank, hon åker buss varje dag.
- 8 kan jag få tag i det billigaste vinet?
- 9 Kiruna ligger i norra Sverige, det är mycket kallt på vintern.
- 10 Jämtland är ett landskap, jag skulle vilja åka.
- 11 Vi vet fortfarande inte, vi ska resa i sommar.
- 12 Göran kör ofta till Göteborg, han har många vänner.

Exercise 60

Give the Swedish for:

- 1 Many Swedes travel to Spain in the summer.
- 2 Jan went to the mountains in order to go skiing.
- 3 Frenchmen are more stylish than Englishmen.
- 4 Göran is saving money to buy a car.
- 5 Italian wine is cheaper than French wine.
- 6 She speaks Swedish at home and English at the office.
- 7 Many Finns also speak Swedish.
- 8 He moved from northern Norway to look for work.

77 'Vad som...', 'vem som...', 'vilken som ...'

The use of the question words vad, vem and vilken (vilket, vilka) has already been discussed (Section 13):

Vem är den där pojken?

Who is that boy?

Vad ska du göra i sommar?

What are you doing this summer?

Vilken bok har hon läst?

Which book has she read?

In subordinate clauses in which vad, vem and vilken function as the objects of the clause, the pattern remains as above:

Han frågade mig, vem jag hade träffat.

He asked me whom I had met.

Hon undrade, vad vi skulle göra.

She wondered what we should do.

Jag frågade, vilken tidning han läste.

I asked which newspaper he was reading.

But in subordinate clauses in which vad, vem and vilken function as the subject they must be accompanied by the relative pronoun som:

Jag undrar, vem som kommer till festen.

I wonder who is coming to the party.

Jag undrar, vad som händer i Sverige.

I wonder what is happening in Sweden.

Han frågade mig, vilken väg som var kortast.

He asked me which way was shortest.

78 'Vad som helst...', 'vem som helst...', 'vilken som helst...'

These correspond to English phrases such as 'anything at all', 'anything you care to name', 'whatever you like' etc.

Vad som helst and vem som helst are unchangeable, whereas vilken som helst may insert a noun between vilken and som helst and will agree with that noun:

Vem som helst kan lära sig svenska.

Anybody can learn Swedish.

Hon är inte vem som helst!

She is not just anybody!

Han äter vad som helst.

He eats any old thing.

Köp vilket vin som helst!

Buy any wine you like!

Du kan få vilken bok som helst.

You can have any book you care to name.

Exercise 61

Give the Swedish for:

- 1 Who was that German woman you were talking to?
- 2 He asked me who had painted (måla 1) the old house.
- 3 You can eat anything you like but you must eat something!
- 4 Who was the man who gave you the Norwegian books?
- 5 I wonder which car is best.
- 6 The Prime Minister is not just any old Italian!
- 7 She wanted to know who liked Spanish food.
- 8 Anyone can do it if he wants to, he said.

79 Compound verbs

Many Swedish verbs are compound verbs in that they consist of the verb and a particle. In some cases the particle is a prefix (betala 'to pay', oroa 'to disturb', förklara 'to explain') and in some cases it follows the verb (tycka om 'to like', känna igen 'to recognise', slå sönder 'to smash'). The following prefixed particles are always inseparable from the verb:

an-	anklaga (1)	to accuse
be-	betyda (2)	to mean
er-	erbjuda (4)	to offer
för-	förlora (1)	to lose
här-	härleda (2)	to derive
miss-	missunna (1)	to grudge
o-	oroa (1)	to disturb
sam-	samarbeta (1)	to cooperate

um-	umgås (4)	to go round with und-	undvika (4)	to avoid van-	vansköta (2)	to neglect, mismanage
väl-	välsigna (1)	to bless
å-	åkalla (1)	to invoke

Sverige, Norge och Danmark samarbetar på många sätt.
Sweden, Norway and Denmark cooperate in many ways.

Han undvek att titta på mig.
He avoided looking at me.

Most of the many particles, however, are separable and follow the verb:

bryta av (4)	to break off
gå förbi (4)	to walk past
slå ihjäl (4)	to kill
komma in (4)	to enter
följa med (2)	to accompany
sätta på (4)	to switch on
stänga av (2)	to switch off
stryka under (4)	to underline
gå ut (4)	to exit
komma ihåg (4)	to remember

Hon satte på TV:n innan han gick ut.
She put on the TV before he went out.

Han bröt av en gren och slog ihjäl vargen.
He broke off a branch and killed the wolf.

In speech the particle is stressed: sätta på, slå ihjäl etc.

There are certain circumstances in which the separable particles will be prefixed to the verb:

- (a) In the present and past participles (see Sections 50 and 85) the separable particles will always be prefixed to the verb: känna igen but igenkännande 'recognising'; gå förbi but förbigående 'passing'; tycka om but omtyckt 'liked', 'popular'; bryta av but avbruten 'broken off'.

- (b) In a few cases the prefixed and separate forms have developed rather different meanings, one literal (the separate form) and one abstract (the prefixed form):

Pojken bröt av grenen.

The boy broke off the branch.

Statsministern avbröt diskussionen.

The Prime Minister broke off the discussion.

- (c) In many cases there is a stylistic difference between using the separate form and the prefixed form. The separate form will be used in ordinary speech and informal writing whereas the prefixed form will be used in formal writing:

De lade ned böckerna på bordet.

They put the books down on the table.

Statsministern nedlade en krans på graven.

The Prime Minister laid a wreath on the grave.

80 Where to place the particle

The normal position for the separable particle with compound verbs is immediately after the main verb:

En svensk flicka gick förbi.

A Swedish girl walked past.

Den tyska kvinnan kände igen henne.

The German woman recognised her.

Pojken har brutit av en gren.

The boy has broken off a branch.

Har de känt igen dig?

Have they recognised you?

Ska du inte slå ihjäl vargen?

Aren't you going to kill the wolf?

Jag frågade, om han tyckte om mjölk.

I asked if he liked milk.

There are, however, a number of situations when the verb and the particle are separated:

- (a) In the present and imperfect tenses of the verb in main clauses, simple adverbs such as aldrig, alltid, gärna, kanske, ofta, inte, redan, snart and sällan will come between the verb and its particle:

Han kände inte igen mig.

He didn't recognise me.

Flickan gick ofta förbi.

The girl often walked past.

- (b) When the present and imperfect tenses of the verb are inverted in main clauses the subject will also come between the verb and its particle:

Tycker du om svensk mat?

Do you like Swedish food?

Kände hon igen dig?

Did she recognise you?

Slog han inte ihjäl vargen?

Didn't he kill the wolf?

Imorgon reser vi bort.

Tomorrow we are going away.

- (c) The adverbs bra, mycket and illa ('bad', 'badly') always stand between the verb and its particle:

Han tycker mycket om italienska filmer.

He likes Italian films very much.

Hon har alltid tyckt illa om honom.

She has always disliked him.

Exercise 62

The verb particle has been omitted in the following sentences. Rewrite the sentences placing it in its proper position.

- 1 Han sade, att han inte kände henne. (igen)
- 2 Lade han inte böckerna på bordet? (ned)
- 3 Har ni alltid tyckt illa honom? (om)
- 4 Var det Jan som bröt grenen? (av)
- 5 Han går ofta men han kommer aldrig. (förbi, in)

Exercise 63

Give the Swedish for:

- 1 Does she dislike German cars?
- 2 I didn't recognise the boy who walked past.
- 3 Don't you remember him?
- 4 Please put on the TV!
- 5 Aren't you going to switch off the TV?

Svante Är det Birgitta?

Is that Birgitta?

Birgitta Ja, det är det. Är det inte Svante Ahlgren?
Yes, it is. Isn't that Svante Ahlgren?

Svante Jo. Kommer du ihåg mig?
Yes. Do you remember me?

Birgitta Visst kommer jag ihåg dig. Men vad gör du nuförtiden?

Certainly I remember you. But what are you doing nowadays?

Svante Bärbel och jag är faktiskt i Stockholm just nu. Jag har jobbat i Tyskland i tre år men nu har jag tagit två veckors semester för att hälsa på mina släktingar här i Sverige. Och Bärbel har följt med. Det är första gången hon är i Sverige.

Bärbel and I are actually in Stockholm just now. I've been working in Germany for three years but now I've taken two weeks' holiday to visit my relations here in Sweden. And Bärbel has come along. It's the first time she has been to Sweden.

Birgitta Bärbel?

Svante Det är min fru. Vi gifte oss för fyra månader sedan och nu vill jag presentera henne för alla. Hon är tyska, förstås.

That's my wife. We got married four months ago and now I want to introduce her to everyone. She's a German, of course.

Birgitta Nej, men så trevligt! Då måste ni komma och hälsa på oss. Jag kan ju tyska. Kan ni komma hem till oss på fredag kväll?

Well, how nice! In that case you must come and visit us. I can speak German, after all. Can you come to our place on Friday evening?

Svante Ja, tack, det låter trevligt. Hur dags ska vi komma?

Yes, thank you, that sounds nice. What time shall we come?

Birgitta Vid sextiden, om det passar.
Around six, if that suits you.

Svante Ja, det passar utmärkt. Hej så länge.
Yes, that suits us excellently. Bye for now.

Birgitta Hej, hej.
Bye, bye.

81 Grammar and idioms in the conversation

- (a) Ett telefonsamtal Swedish, like German, favours compound nouns whereas English normally keeps them separate. Notice that the gender of a compound noun is always that of its final element:

en telefon + ett samtal = ett telefonsamtal

There are a number of possible ways to form compounds and they are not easy for a learner to predict: words may be simply joined together as with ett telefon/samtal; they may be linked by a possessive s as in en stat/s/minister; they may be linked by an extra vowel as in ett kung/a/rike 'kingdom'; an -a at the end of the first word might change into a -u or -o as in ett var/u/hus (from vara-n-or 'ware'); the first part might lose its final vowel as in en pojk/vän.

- (b) Telephone numbers in Swedish are pronounced (and written) as far as possible in pairs:

18 45 64 arton fyrtiofem sextiofyra

- (c) Gång-en-ar and tid-en-er, both meaning 'time', must be distinguished. Gång is a point in time, an occasion; tid is a continuum, a period of time:

Jag träffade henne bara en gång.
I met her only once.

Hon bodde i Italien en tid.
She lived in Italy for a time.

Fairy stories in Swedish open with the words:

Det var en gång...
Once upon a time...

- (d) Första gången The omission of the first of the double definite articles occurs in a number of circumstances. It happens, for instance:

- (i) where a phrase has become the set name of a place or institution as in Förenta staterna, 'the United States'; Vita huset, 'The White House' in Washington; Kungliga slottet, 'the Royal Palace' in Stockholm; Franska revolutionen, 'the French Revolution';
(ii) with the ordinal numbers as in första/andra/tredje gången, 'the first/second/third time'.

- (e) Nej, men så trevligt! Nej is frequently used, as here, as an expression of surprise and without any necessarily negative sense. Think of English 'Well, I never!'

- (f) Jag kan ju tyska The verb kunna, 'to be able', is often used alone, particularly with languages, to mean 'to know':

De kan italienska och spanska.
They know Italian and Spanish.

- (g) Notice the difference between the 'motion' and 'location' constructions komma hem till oss and vara hemma hos oss:

Kan ni komma hem till oss på fredag kväll?
Can you come to our place on Friday evening?

De var hemma hos oss hela kvällen.
They were at our place the whole evening.

- (h) Vid sextiden Notice this expression of general time using vid:

vid åttatiden
around eight, eightish

82 Numbers as nouns

There is a useful method of converting the numbers 0–12 and other numbers ending in 1–9 (i.e. 21–29, 31–39 etc.) into nouns of Group (i) – that is, the flicka-n-or group.

åtta	en åtta	åttnan	åttor
nio	en nia	nian	nior
tio	en tia	tian	tior
elva	en elva	elvan	elvor
tolv	en tolv	tolvan	tolvor

As you will see from the examples below, these may be applied to: the name of the number itself; a coin or note of that amount; bus or tram numbers; hospital wards or school years; clothing and shoe sizes; the size of a flat measured in rooms.

Barnet kan inte skriva åttor.

The child can't write eights.

Var snäll och låna mig en tia.

Please lend me a tenner.

Chapter 11

In this penultimate chapter you will find out:

- the difference between transitive and intransitive verbs
- how verbs can be created from adjectives
- how to use the past participle as an adjective
- how the passive voice ('was driven', etc.) is formed and used.

83 Transitive and intransitive verbs

Transitive verbs are verbs that take a direct object (e.g. 'Erik loved Gunilla') whereas intransitive verbs do not take a direct object (e.g. 'Erik's grandfather died'). Many verbs are, of course, both transitive and intransitive (e.g. 'He finished the book' and 'The film finishes at 10 o'clock').

English commonly uses the same verb with both transitive and intransitive functions. In Swedish, however, the distinction is a clearer one and, in many cases, there is a pair of related verbs, one of which has a transitive function and the other an intransitive function:

Transitive

bränna (2) to burn
dränka (2) to drown
röka (2) to smoke
väcka (2) to wake

Jan väckte mig kl.7.
Jag vaknade kl.7.
Han röker cigaretter.
Elden ryker.
Pojken dränkte katten.
Katten drunknade i ån.

Intransitive

brinna (4) to burn
drunkna (1) to drown
ryka (1) to smoke
vakna (1) to wake

Jan woke me at 7 o'clock.
I woke at 7 o'clock.
He smokes cigarettes.
The fire is smoking.
The boy drowned the cat.
The cat drowned in the river.

Here is a list of some further verbs where a distinction is necessary:

Transitive

lämna (1) to leave kyla (2) to chill
ställa (2) to put, stand sätta (4) to set, place
lägga (4) to lay, put

Intransitive

gå (4) to leave, go, depart kallna (1) to grow cold
stå (4) to stand, be standing sitta (4) to sit, be sitting ligga (4) to lie, be lying

Vocabulary

flaska-n-or	bottle
kök-et-	kitchen
vardagsrum-met-	living room
gäst-en-er	guest
säng-en-ar	bed
sovrum-met-	bedroom

Exercise 64

Give the Swedish for:

- 1 Erik and Göran left at 4 o'clock.
- 2 Gunilla must chill the wine before the party.
- 3 Jan put the glasses on the table.
- 4 The bottles were already standing on the table.
- 5 He leaves the cups in the kitchen.
- 6 The guests were sitting in the living room.
- 7 The two children were lying on the bed in the bedroom.
- 8 The food was growing cold in the kitchen.

84 Verbs ending in '-na'

You will have noticed the relationship between kall 'cold' and kallna 'to grow cold' in the above. Many intransitive verbs may be created from adjectives by adding the suffix -na. All such verbs are Class 1:

blek	pale	blekna (1)	to go pale
gul	yellow	gulna (1)	to go yellow
blå	blue	blåna (1)	to go blue
svart	black	svartna (1)	to go black ljus	light	ljusna (1)	to grow light
mörk	dark	mörkna (1)	to grow dark

Notice the irregularity of röd 'red' but rodna 'to blush'.

85 Past participles

The past participle in English is the part of the verb that is used to form the perfect and pluperfect tenses, and it may also be used as an adjective: 'she has spoken', 'he is a master of the spoken word'.

We have already seen (Section 46 and 47) that the Swedish perfect and pluperfect tenses are formed by using the supine and that the supine is invariable. The Swedish past participle is closely related to the supine but, like other adjectives, it changes its form to agree with the gender, form and number of what it refers to.

The various forms of the past participle are as follows. Notice that they differ according to the class of verb and that the endings are added to the stem of the infinitive in the case of weak verbs (Classes 1, 2 and 3) and to the stem of the supine in the case of strong verbs (Class 4):

	Infinitive/ Supine	En-form	Ett-form	Plural and definite
1	tala	talad	talat	talade
2a	beställa	beställd	beställt	beställda

2b	köpa	köpt	köpt	köpta
3	sy	sydd	sytt	sydda
4	sjunka/sjunkit	sjunken	sjunket	sjunkna

Bilen är parkerad på gatan.

The car is parked on the street.

Gatan var full med parkerade bilar.

The street was full of parked cars.

Bordet är redan beställt.

The table is already booked.

Vi tittade på den sjunkna båten.

We looked at the sunken boat.

Stefan Edberg är mycket välkänd.

Stefan Edberg is very well-known.

De nyköpta böckerna låg på golvet.

The newly bought books were lying on the floor.

Han stod framför ett nymålat fönster.

He was standing in front of a newly painted window.

Exercise 65

Give the Swedish for:

- 1 They are very interested in (av) books.
- 2 The door is closed and the house is locked.
- 3 The written language is difficult.
- 4 This department store is well-known.
- 5 The newly painted door is already dirty.
- 6 The tickets are already ordered.
- 7 A car stood parked in front of the house.
- 8 He has forgotten his newly bought bicycle.

86 Passive voice

In the active voice of verbs (the form we have met so far), the subject of the clause is performing the action. In the passive voice the subject is having the action performed on it. Sometimes the clause includes an agent (the person or thing performing the action), but not always.

Active	The man drove the car.
Passive (with agent)	The car was driven by the man.
Passive (no agent)	The case was dismissed.

There are two ways of forming the passive voice of verbs in Swedish: the bli passive and the s-passive. When the agent is stated, the preposition av is used where English has 'by'.

The bli passive is formed by using the relevant tense of the verb bli together with the correct form of the past participle. Remember that the past participle, being an adjective, must agree with the number and gender of the subject:

Flickan blir ofta inbjuden av honom.
The girl is often invited by him.

Barnet blev inbjudet av honom.
The child was invited by him.

Flickorna har blivit inbjudna av honom.
The girls have been invited by him.

Kvinnan kommer att bli inbjuden av honom.
The woman will be invited by him.

The s-passive is basically formed by adding -s to the active form of the main verb (with a slight variation in the present tense):

Saken diskuteras.
The matter is being discussed.

Saken diskuterades.
The matter was being discussed.

Saken har diskuterats.
The matter has been discussed.

Saken ska diskuteras.
The matter will be discussed.

Saken måste diskuteras.
The matter must be discussed.

Notice that in the present tense the final -r is dropped in verbs of Class 1 and 3 (and those verbs of Class 4 with an infinitive resembling Class 3 e.g. se 'to see', ta 'to take'):

Han bakar brödet och hon syr kjolen.
He bakes the bread and she sews the skirt.

Brödet bakas och kjolen sys.
The bread is being baked and the skirt is being sewn.

In the present tense of verbs of Class 2 and 4 the final -er is dropped:

Han stänger dörren klockan sju.
He shuts the door at 7 o'clock.

Dörren stängs klockan 7.
The door is shut at 7 o'clock.

If, however, the stem of the verb ends in -s (låsa 'to lock', läsa 'to read') only the -r of the present tense is dropped:

Dörren låses.
The door is being locked.

Boken läses.
The book is being read.

87 Using the forms of the passive voice

The two forms of the passive are often used interchangeably though the s-passive is the more common, particularly in writing. There are, however, some differences as the following examples will show.

If the occurrence is habitual the s-passive is usually used:

Frukost serveras kl.8.

Breakfast is served at 8.

Lunch serveras klockan 12.

Lunch is served at 12.

If the occurrence happens only once the bli passive is usually used:

Min bil blev stulen igår.

My car was stolen yesterday.

If no agent is mentioned the s-passive is often used:

Alltför många människor skadas i trafiken varje år.

Far too many people are injured in the traffic every year.

If the agent is mentioned the bli passive is often used:

Hunden blev sparkad av sin ägare.

The dog was kicked by its owner.

The s-passive is all-pervasive in bureaucratic written style:

Anmälan görs på särskild blankett som fås på och lämnas direkt till institutionen.

Application is made on a special form which is obtained from and handed in to the department.

The passive voice with no agent mentioned may often be avoided in Swedish by using constructions with the impersonal pronoun man:

Man äter mycket fisk i Sverige.

A lot of fish is eaten in Sweden.

88 Deponent verbs

A number of Swedish verbs always occur in the s-form. These are the so-called deponent verbs: verbs that have a passive form but an active meaning.

Jag hoppas att han kommer till Stockholm.
I hope that he comes to Stockholm.

De trivdes i Sverige.
They liked it in Sweden.

Here is a list of some of the most common deponent verbs.

andas (1)	to breathe
finnas (4)	to be, to exist
hoppas (1)	to hope
kräkas (2)	to vomit
lyckas (1)	to succeed
låtsas (1)	to pretend
minnas (2)	to remember
synas (2)	to appear
trivas (2)	to feel at home, like it
tyckas (2)	to seem
umgås (4)	to go round with, be friendly with
åldras (1)	to age

A number of the deponent verbs are 'modal equivalents' and are therefore not followed by att in two-verb constructions (see Section 73.) These verbs are: hoppas, lyckas, låtsas and tyckas.

Han lyckades bli rik men han låtsades vara fattig.
He succeeded in becoming rich but he pretended to be poor.

86 Reciprocal use of the s-form

With certain verbs the s-form may be used to include the idea of 'each other'. This, clearly, can only be done when the verb is being used in the plural:

Ni träffades i London, eller hur?
You met each other in London, didn't you?

Har vi inte setts förut?

Haven't we seen each other before?

De kysstes hela kvällen.

They were kissing each other all evening.

'Each other' can also be expressed literally by using varandra:

De kysste varandra hela kvällen.

They were kissing each other all evening.

CONVERSATION

Före festen

Before the party

Hans Jag hoppas att det blir trevligt på festen ikväll! Det är inte så ofta vi träffas allihop nu för tiden. Jag har t. ex. inte träffat Kalle och Margareta på år och dag.

I hope it's going to be nice at the party tonight. It isn't very often the whole lot of us meet each other nowadays. I haven't, for instance, met Kalle and Margareta for years and years.

Eva Det blir säkert trevligt, men det är mycket som ska göras innan dess. Vinet ska kylas, maten ska lagas och bordet ska dukas.

It's sure to be nice, but there is a lot to be done before then. The wine is to be cooled, the food to be prepared and the table to be laid.

Hans Om någonting ska diskas, kan du säga till mig. Du vet att jag älskar att diska.

If there is anything to be washed up, you can tell me. You know that I love washing up.

Eva Tack, men det behövs nog inte. Däremot ska potatisen skalas och en massa konserverburkar ska öppnas. Det kanske du kan göra?

Thanks, but that probably won't be needed. On the other hand there are the potatoes to be peeled and a heap of tins to be opened. You can do that perhaps?

Hans Javisst, det gör jag gärna. Kommer Karin och Jonas ikväll? I så fall måste vi laga en rätt utan kött också, för de är vegetarianer. Någonting med räkor blir säkert uppskattat. Certainly, I'll gladly do that. Are Karin and Jonas coming this evening? In that case we'll also have to make a dish without meat as they are vegetarians. Something with prawns will undoubtedly be appreciated.

Eva Karin och Jonas kommer tyvärr inte. De väntar på att deras hus ska bli sålt och just ikväll kommer det ett äldre par för att titta på huset.

Unfortunately, Karin and Jonas are not coming. They are waiting for their house to be sold and there is an elderly couple coming to look at the house this very evening.

Hans Vad synd! Jag hade tänkt prata med Jonas om hans nya uppfinning. Det sägs att han har uppfunnit en tänkande cykel.

What a pity! I was intending to talk to Jonas about his new invention. He is said to have invented a thinking bicycle.

Eva Och det tror du på! Nej, nu måste vi sätta igång. Maten ska serveras klockan sju. And you believe that! Well, now we must get going. The food is to be served at 7 o'clock.

Hans Men Pelle och Helena kommer väl? But Pelle and Helena are surely coming?

Eva Ja, Pelle kommer. Tyvärr kommer inte Helena, för hon ska opereras i morgon bitti. Det är ingenting allvarligt, men Pelle är mer nervös för operationen än Helena så han behöver nog underhållas lite i kväll. Yes, Pelle is coming. Unfortunately Helena is not coming as she is to be operated on tomorrow morning. It's nothing serious, but Pelle is more nervous about the operation than Helena so he certainly needs to be entertained a little bit extra this evening.

Hans Stackars Pelle! Nej, det här duger inte. Här ska arbetas!

Poor Pelle! Heavens, this won't do. There's work to be done here!

Efter festen

After the party

Eva Vad varmt det blev ikväll! Innan vi öppnade fönstret, var det så varmt att jag nästan inte kunde andas.

How hot it was this evening! Before we opened the window it was so hot that I almost couldn't breathe.

Hans Men vilken lyckad fest! Alla verkade trivas. Och själv kan jag inte minnas att jag någonsin haft så roligt!

But what a successful party! Everyone seemed to like it. And as for myself I can't remember ever having had such fun!

90 Grammar and idioms in the conversation

- (a) nu för tiden (nuförtiden) 'nowadays'. A small number of common words in Swedish sometimes appear as separate words and sometimes compounded. These are mainly prepositional phrases in the process of becoming 'words'. Other examples are: i dag/ idag, i morgon/ imorgon, i kväll/ ikväll.
- (b) t. ex. (till exempel) 'for example'. Written Swedish frequently uses abbreviations; in speech, however, the full forms are pronounced. Among the most common abbreviations are:

bl.a. (bland annat/andra)

- (c) potatis-en-ar Although it does have a plural form potatis is almost invariably used as a singular collective noun:

Skulle du vilja ha potatis?

Would you like to have potatoes?

Jag tycker mycket om färsk potatis.

I really like new potatoes.

Du äter för mycket potatis.

You eat too many potatoes.

- (d) en massa konservburkar Remember (Section 32) that nouns of amount, whether general or specific, are not followed by 'of':

ett kilo ost	a kilo of cheese
två liter bensin	two litres of petrol ett glas mjölk	a glass of milk
en flaska vin	a bottle of wine

- (e) just ikväll 'this very evening'. Swedish just is something of a 'false friend' for English speakers since it can only mean 'precisely', 'exactly' and can never mean 'only':

just det	exactly that, precisely so
bara du och jag	just (only) you and me

- (f) ett äldre par 'an elderly couple'. This is an example of an absolute comparative – that is, the comparative adjective is being used to indicate 'fairly' without any true comparison being made:

en mindre stad	a smallish town
en större summa pengar	a largish sum of money

- (g) att jag någonsin haft så roligt It is quite common for the auxiliary har to be left out of subordinate clauses.

Exercise 66

Using the s-passive, give the Swedish for:

- 1 The letter was sent yesterday.
- 2 Their house has already been sold.
- 3 Helena will be operated on next Tuesday.
- 4 The potatoes must be peeled before 5 o'clock.
- 5 The bicycle was invented a hundred years ago.

Exercise 67

Using the bli-passive, give the Swedish for:

- 1 Bengt and Karin were also invited to the party.
- 2 The prawns will not be appreciated by Karin.
- 3 The tins have not been opened.
- 4 The wine was never ordered.
- 5 Helena is often kissed by Pelle.

Exercise 68

Rewrite the following sentences using the reciprocal s-form instead of varandra:

- 1 De träffade varandra på festen.
- 2 Vi ser varandra nästan varje dag.
- 3 Ni ska väl träffa varandra nästa vecka?
- 4 Varför måste ni kyssa varandra hela tiden?
- 5 Hur länge är det sedan vi såg varandra?

Chapter 12

The final chapter of your course includes:

- the pairs of words 'either ... or', 'both ... and', and so on
- ways of translating 'all' and 'whole'
- the useful pronoun man ('one', 'you')
- ways of expressing 'this one', 'the ones', and so on
- notes on some verbs that present problems for English speakers
- guidelines for spelling Swedish correctly.

91 'Either... or', 'neither... nor', 'both... and'

Antingen... eller 'either... or':

Han vill antingen resa till Malmö eller till Lund.

He wants to go either to Malmö or to Lund.

If the statement starts with antingen there must be inversion:

Antingen reser han till Malmö eller till Lund.

He is either going to Malmö or to Lund.

Varken... eller 'neither... nor':

Hon vill varken äta eller dricka.

She will neither eat nor drink.

Både... och 'both... and':

Hon vill både äta och dricka.

She wants both to eat and to drink.

Både Karin och Gunilla var på festen.

Both Karin and Gunilla were at the party.

Note carefully that when it is just 'both' as opposed to 'both... and' the form must be the plural båda:

Båda kvinnorna var på festen.

Both the women were at the party.

92 'All' and 'whole'

All (allt, alla), allting 'all', 'everything':

Just as in English, the noun following all may or may not be accompanied by the definite article or a possessive word:

Han köpte all maten.

He bought all the food.

Allt hopp är ute!

All hope is gone!

Han gjorde av med alla sina pengar.

He spent all his money.

Allt and allting standing alone mean 'everything' and are synonymous:

Hon säger att hon vet allt om Spanien.

She says she knows everything about Spain.

Alla standing on its own means 'everyone' but remember that it is formally plural and thus any adjective that goes with it will have to be plural:

Alla tycker om henne.

Everyone likes her.

Alla är så glada idag.

Everyone is so happy today.

When English 'all' can be replaced by 'whole', Swedish will use hel:

Han bodde där ett helt år.

He lived there for a whole year.

When the definite form hela is used the noun will take only the end-article:

Han satt och läste hela dagen.

He sat reading all day.

93 'Man', 'en', 'ens'

The very common general pronoun man ('one', 'you', 'they', 'people') can only be used as a subject. The object and possessive forms, which are much less common, are respectively en and ens:

Man måste arbeta för att tjäna pengar.

One has to work in order to earn money.

Det kan hända att polisen stoppar en för att kontrollera ens körkort.

It might happen that the police stop one in order to check one's driving licence.

The possessives sin, sitt, sina operate with man in exactly the same way as with han etc. (See Section 52):

Man älskar sina barn.

One loves one's children.

94 'What sort of...?'

The expression vad ... för (en/ett) ... ? 'what sort of (a)... ?' is not affected by gender or number.

Vad köpte du för ost?

What sort of cheese did you buy?

Vad har du för bil nu?

What kind of car have you got now?

95 'Ones'

Swedish uses the adjective alone in most situations where English substitutes 'one(s)' for the missing noun. The adjective must agree with the gender and number of the noun it is standing in for:

Ska jag ta den svarta kjolen? Nej, ta den vita.

Shall I take the black skirt? No, take the white one.

Lindbergs har en grön bil och en röd.

The Lindbergs have a green car and a red one.

Gamla människor är klokare än unga.

Old people are cleverer than young ones.

Sådan (sådant, sådana) 'such' may be used with a noun (but the position of the indefinite article differs from English):

Jag har aldrig läst en sådan bok förr.

I have never read such a book before.

Min fru tycker inte alls om sådana böcker.

My wife doesn't like such books at all.

It may also be used without a noun and then has the sense 'one(s) like that' or 'such things' or 'the like':

Vilket fint hus! Jag skulle vilja ha ett sådant!

What a fine house! I should like one like that!

Sådant tolereras inte här!

Such things will not be tolerated here!

96 'Utan' and 'utom'

Utan can be a preposition meaning 'without':

Han kommer alltid utan pengar.

He always comes without money.

It can also be a conjunction meaning 'but' (Section 43). It should be used instead of men only when the preceding clause is negative and when the utan clause contradicts it:

Hans bil är inte gammal utan ganska ny.

His car is not old but quite new.

Compare this with a statement without any contradiction:

Hans bil är inte gammal men den är rostig.

His car is not old but it is rusty.

Utom is a preposition meaning 'but' in the sense of 'except':

Alla utom Jan var på festen.

Everyone apart from Jan was at the party.

Exercise 69

Give the Swedish for:

- 1 He did everything he could (in order) to help.
- 2 Both Mum and Dad were sitting in the living room.
- 3 The whole school hoped that he would win.
- 4 Such things often happen in a big town.
- 5 They say that he invented both the bicycle and the car!
- 6 He often goes to the cinema without his wife.
- 7 What sort of bicycle did you buy?
- 8 She can neither speak nor write Finnish.
- 9 We have read all his books but one.
- 10 They are not young but they are happy.
- 11 Which table shall I buy? Take the big one.
- 12 Everyone blushed when they saw that photo.

97 Some problem verbs

- (a) English 'ask' may be translated by either be or fråga depending on the meaning. Be (4, ber, bad, bett) means 'to ask for', 'to ask someone to do something', 'to request':

Hon bad mig om hjälp. She asked me for help.

Vi bad honom göra det. We asked him to do it.

Fråga (1) is 'to ask a question', 'to enquire':

Jag ska fråga expediten.

I'll ask the assistant.

- (b) English 'know' may be translated by veta, känna or kunna. Veta is 'to know facts', 'to have information':

Hon vet en hel del om den svenska historien.

She knows a good deal about Swedish history.

Vet du, om han tänker komma till festen?

Do you know if he intends coming to the party?

Känna is 'to know people':

Känner du Åke Lindberg?

Do you know Åke Lindberg?

Kunna is 'to know languages and subjects', 'to have learned':

Han kan franska, tyska och spanska.

He knows French, German and Spanish.

Jag vet att du känner Åke Lindberg som kan franska, tyska och spanska.

I know that you know Åke Lindberg, who knows French, German and Spanish.

- (c) English 'live' may be either bo or leva (2). Bo is 'to be resident', 'to dwell':

Lindbergs bor i södra Sverige.

The Lindbergs live in southern Sweden.

Leva is 'to be alive', 'to live a... life':

Gustav Vasa levde på 1500-talet.

Gustav Vasa lived in the 16th century.

Nu lever de lyckliga och älskar varandra.

Now they live a happy life and love each other.

- (d) English 'think' may be tro, tycka or tänka. Tro is 'to believe':

Jag tror att jag håller på att bli sjuk.
I think I'm going to be ill.

Tycka is 'to hold a personal opinion', 'to feel', 'to reckon':

Gunilla tyckte att Erik var en charmig ung man.
Gunilla thought that Erik was a charming young man.
Tycker du inte att Sverige är ett vackert land?
Don't you think that Sweden is a beautiful country?

Tänka is 'to ponder', 'to intend':

Vad tänker du göra imorgon?
What are you thinking of doing tomorrow?
Jag kan inte tänka när du pratar!
I can't think when you are talking!

- (e) English 'want' may be followed by either a verb or a noun: 'I want to go to America'; 'I want that car'. Vilja, however, is almost invariably followed by a verb, so English 'want' + noun should be translated by vilja ha:

Hon ville resa till Amerika men han ville ha en ny bil.
She wanted to go to America but he wanted (to have) a new car.

- (f) English 'have' may be used among many other things to mean 'to eat', 'to drink', 'to receive', 'to be compelled to'. Each needs a different rendering in Swedish:

äta: Ska vi äta frukost idag?
Shall we have breakfast today?
dricka: Han drack två flaskor vin på festen.
He had two bottles of wine at the party.
få: Jag har inte fått ditt brev än.
I haven't had your letter yet.
måste: Du måste köpa hans senaste bok.
You have to buy his most recent book.

- (g) English 'get' may mean 'to receive', 'to arrive' or 'to become'. Swedish will use different verbs:

få: Jan fick en bil, en båt, en boll och en bok.
Jan got a car, a boat, a ball and a book.
komma: Hur dags kommer vi till Kiruna?
What time do we get to Kiruna?
bli: Jag vill inte bli arg!
I don't want to get angry!

Exercise 70

Give the Swedish for:

- 1 Shall we go and have lunch somewhere?
- 2 He asked me to buy the train tickets.
- 3 They thought Sweden was more beautiful than France.
- 4 When I get to America I intend to be rich.
- 5 I know him and I knew his father.
- 6 He thinks the shops are closed today.
- 7 The little boy wanted everything in the shop.
- 8 We'll have to think about it.
- 9 Ask that man if he knows where Kungsgatan is.
- 10 I thought it was Bergman's most boring film.

Jag hade börjat gå allt mer på bio. Ofta kastade jag mig på cykeln efter skolan och åkte ner till någon biograf som hade eftermiddagsföreställning. Jag gick alltid ensam. Jag kunde titta i tidningen på morgonen och bestämma vad jag skulle se. Sedan tänkte jag i skolan ut den snabbaste cykelvägen genom staden så att jag skulle hinna den korta stunden mellan det att skolan slutade och filmen började. I fall någon av mina skolkamrater frågade om vi skulle göra någoting på eftermiddagen skyllde jag på att jag var upptagen. Ibland sade jag att jag var tvungen att åka till farmor för att hjälpa henne med något. Jag föredrog att gå själv på bio.

För att få pengar till bion förskingrade jag från min bankbok eller stal från mamma. Hon märkte aldrig någonting. I alla fall undrade hon aldrig vad jag gjorde på eftermiddagarna. Skulle mamma bort en kväll hann jag ner på en kvällsföreställning också. Men oftast var det på eftermiddagarna jag gick. Just det att alla andra människor var på sina arbeten eller att mina kompisar var ute tillsammans och gjorde något, medan jag själv i hemlighet smet in på en bio var en poäng i sig. Tystnaden och ensamheten i mörkret när ljusen framme vid ridån släcktes gav mig ro och lättnad.

From Månen vet inte by Niklas Rådström (1990).

98 Grammar and idioms in the text

- (a) allt mer 'more and more'. Where English uses repetition of the comparative Swedish uses allt:

allt bättre	better and better
allt fortare	more and more quickly

- (b) Ofta kastade jag mig på cykeln... Notice that cykeln has the definite article rather than the possessive 'my' that English uses. In the case of parts of the body, clothing and possessions whose ownership is quite clear from the context, Swedish prefers the definite article to the possessive:

Ta av dig överrocken!	Take off your overcoat!
Hon tvättade händerna.	She washed her hands.

- (c) Jag kunde titta i tidningen... Notice the use of kunna to cover 'might', 'might happen to'.

- (d) The adverbs sedan and då, both meaning 'then', have to be distinguished: sedan means 'then', 'next', 'after that' whereas då means 'then', 'at that time'.

- (e) Hinna 'to manage to...', 'to have time to...' is very commonly used without any completing verb:

Han hann inte till tåget.

He didn't manage (to catch) the train.

Jag hinner inte.

I haven't got time (to do whatever it is).

Another of the English senses of 'manage' i.e. 'have the strength to', 'have the energy to' is covered by Swedish orka (1) which is also frequently used without a completing verb:

Han orkade inte lyfta pianot.

He didn't manage to lift the piano.

Orkar du?

Do you have the energy?

- (f) ... den korta stunden mellan det att skolan slutade och filmen började. Notice the construction here. The natural English would be to use '-ing' forms: 'between school finishing and the film starting'. That, however, would not make natural Swedish (see Section 51). Mellan alone is the preposition of time or place meaning 'between':

Han satt mellan Erik och Gunilla.

He sat between Erik and Gunilla.

Lunch serveras mellan kl. 12 och kl. 2.

Lunch is served between 12 o'clock and 2 o'clock.

When a conjunction is needed, however, the expanded form mellan det att ('between the time when... and...') must be used.

The preposition efter ('after') causes a similar problem for English speakers. English 'after' can be both a preposition and a conjunction:

Preposition He arrived after 6 o'clock.

Conjunction We left after he had arrived.

Swedish efter can only be a preposition and the expanded form efter det att is the conjunction:

Preposition Han kom efter kl. 6.

Conjunction Vi gick efter det att han hade kommit.

Sedan may also be used as the conjunction 'after':

Vi gick sedan han hade kommit.

- (g) farmor Nouns of family relationship show whether the relationship is on the maternal or the paternal side of the family.

mor, modern, mödrar	mother
mormor, mormodern, mormödrar	grandmother (mat.)
morfär, morfadern, morfäder	grandfather (mat.)
moster, mostern, mostrar	aunt (mat.)
morbror, morbrodern, morbröder	uncle (mat.)

far, fadern, fäder	father
farmor, farmodern, farmödrar	grandmother (pat.)
farfar, farfardern, farfäder	grandfather (pat.)
faster, fastern, fastrar	aunt (pat.)
farbror, farbrodern, farbröder	uncle (pat.)

This could be continued. Fortunately, 'cousin' is kusin-en-er.

- (h) själv A distinction has to be made between själv (självt, själva) which is purely for emphasis and the reflexive pronouns mig, dig, sig etc. (see Section 31).

Han rakade sig.

He shaved.

Han gjorde det själv.

He did it himself.

Statsministern själv ska komma.

The Prime Minister himself is coming.

Själv must agree with the noun or pronoun it refers to:

Vi har inte varit i Frankrike själva.

We haven't been to France ourselves.

- (i) skulle mamma bort en kväll... There are two points to notice here. Firstly, the omission of gå: this is not uncommon with skola when it is accompanied by an adverb of motion such as bort. Idiomatic English has similar phrases such as 'Are you off now?', 'Are you away now?' Secondly, this is a conditional clause (see Section 55) with the om ('if') omitted. When this is done the word order must be inverted:

Om jag hade pengar, skulle jag resa till Afrika. /
Hade jag pengar, skulle jag resa till Afrika.

If I had money, I would travel to Africa.

This is the only situation in which inversion is possible in a subordinate clause. The same construction is occasionally found in English:

Were I to do that, she would be really angry.

99 Spelling

On the whole Swedish spelling offers few problems. The following guidelines cover most of them.

Capital letters

These are used much less than in English. Use them only:

- (a) At the beginning of a sentence and for the first word of a direct quotation. Han sade: 'Nu ska vi gå!'
(b) In proper names: Åke Lindberg, Kungsgatan, Stockholm, Sverige.
(c) For the first word only of a title (including books), name, institution etc.: Nya testamentet, Förenta staterna, Svenska akademien. There are some individual exceptions (Sveriges Radio) and street names with two elements are a consistent exception: Västra Hamngatan.

- (d) Ni and Er are often still capitalised in formal letters; Du, Dig etc. are sometimes still given capitals in letters.

Doubling of 'm' and 'n'

The standard rule in Swedish is that a long vowel is followed by a single consonant and a short vowel by two or more consonants. There are, however, many words with short vowels that end in a single m or n: man, rum, vän, hem.

In such words m or n is doubled when the addition of an ending places the m or n between vowels: man, mannen; rum, rummet; hem, hemma. There is no doubling when the m or n is preceded by a long vowel: fin, fina; tam, tama ('tame').

Words that already contain mm or nn lose the doubling when the addition of an ending places another consonant after them: känna, kände; glömma, glömde; sann, sant.

Silent letters

In colloquial speech sounds that are written are commonly omitted at the end of a word. Particularly common are the following (with the sound omitted in brackets): da(g); de(t); go(d); ja(g); me(d); mända(g) etc; o(ch); ti(ll); va(d).

The very common adjective suffix -ig usually loses its -g in speech: rolig: trevlig.

A number of common words lose a middle consonant: da(ge)n; mor(g)on (always); nå(go)n; sta(de)n; så(da)n; vär(l)d ('world' always).

Variant spellings

Here are the different ways of spelling the...:

j [j] of ja: djur ('animal'); gjorde; Göran; hjärta; jul; ljus.
k [ch] of köpa: köra; kjol; tjugo.
sk [sh] of skicka; sju; skida; skjorta; stjärna ('star')

Spelling and pronunciation at odds

As we have noted, there are a few very common words where standard spelling and standard pronunciation do not match: mig [may]; dig [day]; sig [say]; de/dem [dom]. In informal writing these will often be found written as mej, dej, sej, dom. Remember also är [ay].

Reading practice

Ibland brukade jag sitta och se på mina elever, när de arbetade med någon skriftlig uppgift, och försöka gissa vad de tänkte på och vad de längtade till. Han där, tänkte jag, sitter väl och hoppas att fotbollsplanen ska vara torr, så att han kan sparka boll i eftermiddag, för på fotbollsplanen är han kung. Han där tänker antagligen på sin motorcykel, för han kör motorcross på varje ledig stund, det har han berättat i en uppsats; sedan sitter han av skoltimmarna ungefär som ett fängelsestraff, så slö att somliga lärare tror att han är sjuk. Hon där har huvudet fullt av kärleksromaner. Och blondinen som sitter och pratar framför henne tänker väl på sin kille; hon skall bli damfrisörska, så hon tror att hon inte behöver lära sig något. I andra ansikten kunde jag bara utläsa sömnhet eller vantrivsel och hos några en absurd iver att bli först färdiga med övningsuppgifterna. Många var olidliga att ha som elever, men även de lataste och grinigaste besatt en valpig livsglädje som hängde ihop med deras ålder och som fick mig att förlåta dem det mesta.

Sista timmen en fredag när jag satt så och funderade, stegade rektorn in i salen. Det var en kraftig karl med buskiga ögonbryn, som eleverna var livrädda för, och nu flög de upp i stående ställning, som de hade blivit lärda. Han nickade kort till mig och tog genast till orda:

– Jag ska be att få tala med den eller dom som har kastat pappershanddukar i korridoren!

Tystnad. Han mönstrade bistert de uppskrämda ansiktena.

– Jag har vittnen som väntar utanför dörren, så det är ingen idé att neka! Men jag vill ge den skyldige en chans att anmäla sig frivilligt. Om vederbörande vill vara så god att stiga fram!

Ingen rörde sig.

– Nå, då får vi väl kalla in vittnena då och peka ut kraken...! Fortfarande ingen som har kurage nog att stiga fram? Tråkigt. Otrevlig historia det här. Jag ser mycket allvarligt på detta.

Taken from Dagar och nätter i Paris och Göteborg by Claes Hylinger, 1975.

Sometimes I used to sit and look at my pupils when they were working on a written exercise and try to guess what they were thinking about and what they were longing for. Him there, I thought, he is undoubtedly sitting and hoping that the football pitch will be dry so that he can kick a ball this afternoon, because he is a king on the football pitch. That one there is probably thinking of his motor-bike because he rides motocross every free moment – he told about it in an essay; then he sits out the school hours rather like a prison sentence, so listless that some teachers think he is ill. The girl there has her head full of novels about love. And the blonde who is sitting and talking in front of her is undoubtedly thinking of her boyfriend; she is going to be a ladies' hairdresser so she doesn't think that she needs to learn anything. From other faces I could only read somnolence and unhappiness, and in some of them an absurd eagerness to be the first to finish the exercises. Many of them were insufferable to have as pupils but even the laziest and most whining of them possessed a puppy-like joy in life that went with their age and which made me forgive them for most things.

In the last hour one Friday when I was sitting in this way and pondering, the headmaster strode into the classroom. He was a powerfully built man with bushy eyebrows whom the pupils were terrified of, and now they all shot up into a standing position as they had been taught. He gave me a short nod and immediately started speaking:

'I should like to speak to the one or ones who have been throwing paper towels in the corridor.'

Silence. He scrutinised the terrified faces sternly.

'I have witnesses waiting outside the door, so there is no point in denying it. But I want to give the guilty one a chance to declare himself voluntarily. If the person concerned would be kind enough to step forward.'

No one moved.

'Well, then we shall have to call in the witnesses and point out the wretch...! Is there still no one who has the courage to step forward? Tiresome. Unpleasant business this. I take a very serious view of this.'

August Strindberg, en av de stora svenska författarna, kanske den störste, skrev en gång att det är svårt att älska Sverige. Han var mycket besviken på sitt land, som bland annat hade tvingat honom till exil.

Så han skrev att det var svårt att älska Sverige, men att man "måste försöka!"

Jag tänker på det varje gång jag får problem i det här landet, och det får jag ofta. Det är inte särskilt stora problem. Det handlar för det mesta om små vardagliga problem.

Jag förstår t. ex. inte varför det uppstår köer överallt. Om jag får för mig att köpa en korv och går ner till kiosken vid Mariatorget, där jag arbetar, då kan jag vara säker på att det redan står tre-fyra stycken framför mig.

Om jag går till banken är det samma sak, för att inte tala om posten. Köer, köer. Jag blir vansinnig och det som gör mig vansinnig är att de människor som ska betjäna de köande inte tycks ha bråttom. Snarare tvärtom. Ju fler som står i kö, desto långsammare arbetar man.

Det ser ut som om de gör det med flit. Jag har räknat ut att köandet tar ifrån mig minst två hela arbetsdagar per månad. Jag kommer hem förbannad och grälar på min svenska fru för det. Men hon låter sig inte nedslås.

Och hur är det i ditt land? säger hon och sätter igång och påminner mig om den gången hon förlorade en hel veckas semester i fåfänga försök att inkassera en check. Och när hon till slut hade kommit fram till kassan var kassören borta eftersom det just hade utbrutit en strejk.

Eller den gången i Rom då Expressen hade skickat pengar till mig för en artikel och vi fick springa runt till femton olika banker innan vi fann en människa som ens begrep ett ord på engelska.

Så är det med allting. Jag hinner knappt öppna munnen för att höja min klageröst förrän hon kommer med förintande motexempel. Jag blir givetvis arg och sur i synnerhet som hon har alldeles rätt.

Det kan vara svårt att älska Sverige, men man måste, som Strindberg sade, försöka. Det är när allt kommer omkring det land på jorden där vardagen är enklast. Visst kan det bli en aning enformigt ibland, visst kan man sakna de upplivande bråken men ingenstans i världen är livet lika enkelt som i Sverige.

Taken from an article by Theodor Kallifatides in the immigrant newspaper På lätt svenska, 24 June 1992.

August Strindberg, one of the great Swedish authors, perhaps the greatest, once wrote that it was difficult to love Sweden. He was very disappointed in his country, which, among other things, had forced him into exile.

So he wrote that it was difficult to love Sweden but that one 'must try!'

I think of that every time I get problems in this country, and I get them often. They are not particularly big problems. For the most part it is a matter of small everyday problems.

I do not understand, for example, why queues form everywhere. If I take it into my head to buy a hot dog and go down to the kiosk by Mariatorget where I work, then I can be certain that three or four people will already be standing in front of me.

It is the same thing if I go to the bank, not to mention the post office. Queues, queues. I go crazy and what makes me crazy is that the people who are supposed to serve those queueing don't seem to be in a hurry. Rather the opposite. The more there are standing in the queue the slower they work.

It looks as if they are doing it on purpose. I have worked out that queueing takes at least two whole working days a month from me. I arrive home furious and pick a quarrel with my Swedish wife about it. But she doesn't let herself be crushed.

'And how is it in your country?' she says and gets going and reminds me of the time she lost a whole week's holiday with vain attempts to cash a cheque. And when she finally reached the cash desk the cashier was gone because a strike had just broken out.

Or the time in Rome when The Express had sent money to me for an article and we had to run round to fifteen different banks before we found one person who even understood a word of English.

That's how it is with everything. I scarcely manage to open my mouth to raise my voice in complaint before she brings up annihilating counter-examples. I, of course, get angry and sulky, particularly as she is completely right.

It can be difficult to love Sweden but one must, as Strindberg said, try. It is, when all is said and done, the country on this earth where everyday life is simplest. Certainly it can be a shade monotonous sometimes, certainly one can miss refreshing rows, but there is nowhere in the world where life is as simple as in Sweden.

Exercise 53: 1 den 23/tjugotredje juli 1992 2 (i) tre veckor 3 på sommaren/på somrarna 4 nästa vecka 5 i söndags 6 för femton år sedan 7 på fyra år 8 på lördag 9 före kl.6/klockan sex 10 två gånger i veckan 11 om två veckor

Exercise 54: 1 Jag ska vara i Sverige från den tionde/10 till den femtonde/15 oktober. 2 Han drack kaffe åtta gånger om dagen. 3 Ingrid har inte bott i Göteborg på två år. 4 Göran jobbade som journalist i tio månader. 5 De var ledsna att de måste åka hem om en vecka. 6 Soldaterna marscherade dit på fyra timmar. 7 Eva och Jan ska gifta sig nästa vecka. 8 Vi gjorde av med för mycket pengar i julas. 9 Han sålde sin bil i tisdags kväll. 10 Tisdagen den fjärde/4 januari var en stor dag i hans liv. 11 Karin är född 1983. 12 Tage Erlander var statsminister på 1960-talet. 13 Vi kan läsa den här tidningen på fem minuter. 14 De vill köpa biljetter till imorgon kväll. 15 Kristina tycker om attsitta i trädgården på morgonen/morgnarna.

LESSON 9

Exercise 55: 1 Jag såg några intressanta filmer i London. 2 Ingen såg honom men någon måste ha hört honom. 3 Ingenting händer i den här staden. 4 Hon har inte träffat någon i Göteborg. 5 Vi måste göra någonting innan hon kommer. 6 Jonas ska inte köpa några kassetter denna vecka. 7 Han säger att han inte har stulit några bilar. 8 Hon sade att hon inte hade någonting i huset. 9 Jag vill inte gå någonstans idag. 10 Han vill inte träffa några nya vänner. 11 Jag skulle vilja ha lite bröd och lite öl. 12 Ingen intelligent kvinna tror det.

Exercise 56: 1 Gävle ligger söder om Söderhamn men norr om Uppsala. 2 Han har varit inne hela dagen men nu är han ute. 3 Det är troligen en mycket dålig bok. 4 Det har varit en ovanligt varm dag idag. 5 Skogarna i västra och norra Sverige är jättestora. 6 Lyckligtvis hade vi redan köpt biljetter. 7 Hennes unga dotter dansar vackert. 8 Jag tycker into om att köra söderut när solen skiner. 9 De drack kaffe ute i trädgården. 10 Vart cyklar du/ni i kväll?

Exercise 57: 1 Det är varmare i år än i fjol/förra året. 2 Henrik jobbar på det största kontoret i staden. 3 Jag har en yngre bror och en äldre syster. 4 Den här affären är dyrare än den där. 5 De här bakelserna är godast. 6 Vi har aldrig läst en mer spännande roman. 7 Vintrarna i norra Sverige/Nordsverige är kallast. 8 De minsta männen har de längsta bilarna. 9 Min mor ser mycket yngre ut än min far. 10 Han kysser fler flickor än jag. 11 Det här är den längsta gatan i Lund. 12 Den rikaste mannen bor i det vackraste huset.

Exercise 58: 1 Jonas reste/åkte söderut för att hälsa på Eva. 2 Vi tycker om att simma i havet. 3 Du/ni bör/borde läsa varje bok (som) han skriver. 4 De brukade tycka om att lyssna på fåglarna. 5 Jag behöver köpa nya skor före jul. 6 Eva skyndade sig hem för att baka bröd. 7 Vi var glada att kunna träffa din mor. 8 Göran brukar cykla till kontoret. 9 Hon vägrade titta/se in genom fönstret. 10 Han byggde ett nytt hus i skogen för att kunna titta på älgarna.

LESSON 10

Exercise 59: 1 var 2 där 3 där 4 dit 5 vart 6 där 7 dit 8 var 9 där 10 dit 11 vart 12 där

Exercise 60: 1 Många svenskar reser/åker till Spanien på sommaren/somrarna. 2 Jan reste/åkte till fjällen för att åka skidor. 3 Fransmän är stiligare än engelsmän. 4 Göran sparar pengar för att köpa en bil. 5 Italienskt vin är billigare än franskt vin. 6 Hon talar svenska hemma och engelska på kontoret. 7 Många finnar talar svenska också. 8 Han flyttade från norra Norge för att söka arbete.

Exercise 61: 1 Vem var den där tyskan du talade/pratade med? 2 Han frågade mig vem som hade målat det gamla huset. 3 Du/Ni kan äta vad som helst men du/ni måste äta någonting! 4 Vem var mannen som gav dig de norska böckerna? 5 Jag undrar vilken bil som är bäst. 6 Statsministern är inte vilken italienare som helst! 7 Hon ville veta vem som tyckte om spansk mat. 8 Vem som helst kan göra det om han vill, sade/sa han.

Exercise 62: 1 Han sade, att han inte kände igen henne. 2 Lade han inte ned böckerna på bordet? 3 Har ni alltid tyckt illa om honom? 4 Var det Jan som bröt av grenen? 5 Han går ofta förbi men han kommer aldrig in.

Exercise 63: 1 Tycker hon illa om tyska bilar? 2 Jag kände inte igen pojken som gick förbi. 3 Kommer du inte ihåg honom? 4 Var snäll och sätt på TV-n! 5 Ska du/ni inte stänga av TV-n?

LESSON 11

Exercise 64: 1 Erik och Göran gick kl.4. 2 Gunilla måste kyla vinet före festen. 3 Jan ställde/satte glasen på bordet. 4 Flaskorna stod redan på bordet. 5 Han lämnar kopporna i köket. 6 Gästerna satt i vardagsrummet. 7 De två barnen låg på sängen i sovrummet. 8 Maten kallnade i köket.

Exercise 65: 1 De är mycket intresserade av böcker. 2 Dörren är stängd och huset är låst. 3 Det skrivna språket är svårt. 4 Det här varuhuset är välkänt. 5 Den nymålade dörren är redan smutsig. 6 Biljetterna är redan beställda. 7 En bil stod parkerad framför huset. 8 Han hade glömt sin nyköpta cykel.

Exercise 66: 1 Brevet skickades igår. 2 Deras hus har redan sålts. 3 Helena ska opereras på tisdag. 4 Potatisen måste skalas före kl.5. 5 Cykeln uppfanns för hundra år sedan.

Exercise 67: 1 Bengt och Karin blev också inbjudna till festen. 2 Räkorna kommer inte att bli uppskattade av Karin. 3 Burkarna har inte blivit öppnade. 4 Vinet blev aldrig beställt. 5 Helena blir ofta kysst av Pelle.

Exercise 68: 1 De träffades på festen. 2 Vi ses nästan varje dag. 3 Ni ska väl träffas nästa vecka? 4 Varför måste ni kyssas hela tiden? 5 Hur länge är det sedan vi sågs?

LESSON 12

Exercise 69: 1 Han gjorde allt/allting han kunde för att hjälpa. 2 Både mamma och pappa satt i vardagsrummet. 3 Hela skolan hoppades att han skulle vinna. 4 Sådant händer ofta i en stor stad. 5 Man säger att han uppfann både cykeln och bilen! 6 Han går ofta på bio utan sin fru. 7 Vad köpte du för cykel? 8 Hon kan varken tala eller skriva finska. 9 Vi har läst alla hans böcker utom en. 10 De är inte unga men de är glada. 11 Vilket bord ska jag köpa? Ta det stora. 12 Alla rodnade när de såg det där fotot.

Exercise 70: 1 Ska vi gå och äta lunch någonstans? 2 Han bad mig köpa tågbiljetterna. 3 De tyckte att Sverige var vackrare än Frankrike. 4 När jag kommer till Amerika, tänker jag bli rik. 5 Jag känner honom och jag kände hans far. 6 Han tror att affärerna är stängda idag. 7 Den lilla pojken ville ha allt/allting i affären. 8 Vi måste tänka på det. 9 Fråga den där mannen om han vet var Kungsgatan ligger. 10 Jag tyckte att det var Bergmans tråkigaste film.

Exercise 71: I had started to go more and more often to the cinema. I often threw myself on my bicycle after school and rode down to some cinema that had an afternoon performance. I always went alone. I might look in the paper in the morning and decide what I would see. Then, in school, I thought out the quickest way through the town on a bicycle so that I would make it in the short time between school finishing and the film starting. If any of my schoolfriends asked whether we would be doing anything in the afternoon I made the excuse that I was busy. Sometimes I said that I was forced to go to Granny's to help her with something. I preferred to go to the cinema by myself.

I embezzled from my bank book to get money for the cinema or I stole from Mum. She never noticed anything. In any case, she never wondered what I was doing in the afternoons. If Mum went out in the evening I managed to get down to an evening performance as well. But most often I went in the afternoons. The very fact that all other people were at their jobs or that my friends were out together doing something while I myself sneaked secretly into a cinema was in itself a plus. The silence and the loneliness in the darkness when the lights were extinguished by the curtain at the front gave me peace and relief.
